In New York, a newspaper man, discussing "Love and Marriage" before an important group of business women, nearly all under thirty, and beautiful, told them it was their duty to marry and have children, not fewer than six for each mother.

Miss J. S., business woman, suggests:

"Perhaps business women might not meet many men whom they could hold in such high personal esteem as to consider them fitted for the paternity of the six children they might very much like to have."

Miss J. S. intimates that what business women see of men in business hours inclines them to remain single. A matter of duty, not of choice, is involved, and, besides, the inferior qualities of a man are not important. It is the mother and HER qualities that count.

Napoleon's father did not amount to much, nor Lincoln's father. But those two mothers, the broad-hipped Corsican woman and the tall Nancy Hanks, amounted to a great deal. One freed the slaves, the other made kings ridiculous. It is the duty of Miss J. S., beautiful and young, to marry and have children, and it need not interfere with her business. Sarah Bernhardt had children.

With Madison Square Garden packed, thousands outside unable to enter, Father Coughlin, of Detroit, may be pardoned for indulging a "self-approving hour."

His evident exercise of power recalls the interesting career of another powerful priest, the Dominican monk, Savonarola, who became absolute dictator in Flor-

Tiger John, outrun for the first half mile, closed going the fastest of the lot through the final furlong. Bride Elect well up early, was never a factor after going the first quarter mile. Pantoufle, slow to settle into her best stride, began to move up in the last three furlongs and coming to the outside in the stretch, closed with a rush. Up and Up improved his position gradually, saved ground in the stretch and closed gamely under punishment. Paradun, well placed throughout, was unable to reach the leaders under pressure. ## Little Wins British Title

St. Anne's-on-the-Sea, Eng., May 25—William Lawson Little of San Francisco, defeated Dr. William Tweddell of England, one up, in the 36-hole final of the British Amateur Golf championship this afternoon.

The 24-year-old Californian thus became the first American, and the third man in history to win this crown two successive years.

With Dr. Tweddell twice cutting down a large lead piled up by Little by a magnificent display of fighting golf, the final was one of the most thrilling ever staged in a major tournament.

Little finished the morning round three up.

The doctor, playing every shot carefully and rarely hitting the ball off line, cut this to one up at the 20th, slipped to three down at the 26th as Little's long hitting began to tell, but squared the match on the 30th green. They halved the 31st, Little won two holes, and the 35th was halved.

Dr. Tweddell's four to Little's five on the 35th cut the advantage to one hole, then Little won the 36th, the match, and retained his title.

IL DUCE DEFIES LEAGUE OF NATIONS ON ETHIOPIA

EUROPE'S 'BAD FAITH' RAPPED IN WARNING

By International News

Rome, May 25—Defying League of Nation's powers, Premier Benito Mussolini, in a wildly cheered address in the Chamber of Deputies today, announced Italy's military invasion of Africa will continue unabated.

Shouting flatly that the newly appointed League of Nations commission to conciliate in the Italo-Abyssinian controversy must confine itself solely to the border incident, Il Duce attacked the "bad faith" of those countries "feigning alarm" over Italy's military preparations in Africa.

CHEERED BY DEPUTIES

He declared:

"The menace of oriental Africa is real and ever growing.

"Nobody must hope to turn Abyssinia into a new pistol pointed at us, in which case European difficulties would develop and render difficult our position in Africa.

"Those people must get into their heads that we are ready to assume all duties, even the most supreme."

The deputies cheered loudly and sang several Fascist hymns.

The question of Austrian independence is "particularly an Italian problem" because of threats to Italy's northern frontiers, Mussolini also asserted in his address.

Touching upon Italy's relations with Germany, Il Duce said:

"First we must say a few words to those who would like to have us petrified at Brenner Pass (gateway from Italy to Austria) and prevent all our freedom of movement.

"The problem of Austria's independence is an Austrian problem, but also a European problem, and particularly an Italian one.

MUST DEPEND ON SELVES

"Our metropolitan and colonial frontiers are equally sacred, and must be guarded against any threats.

"We want the attitude of European nations made clear so as to have proof of their concrete friendship, and not only their superficial and verbal friendship.

"But first we must count on ourselves alone."

Mussolini declared it was useless to believe in the limitation of armaments as the elimiantion of certain deadly weapons, such as gas or heavy arms.

Surveying the "thirteen points" enunciated by Chancellor Hitler before the Reichstag this week, Mussolini declared:

Swiss Protest Nazi Planes Over Border

Rome to Send Troops For 'Defense' in Africa

By International News Service

Rome, May 25—Italy will continue to send troops to her African colonies despite the agreement reached at Geneva to arbitrate the dispute with Abyssinia, a foreign office spokesman announced today.

This move has been decided upon, it was said, "for defensive purposes long considered necessary." The spokesman declared:

"The Geneva agreement consequently makes no difference with regard to mobilization of Italian troops, although they might be recalled, if the conciliation committee reaches a satisfactory settlement of outstanding questions."

SCHWAB'S 1934 PAY $250,000

By Associated Press

Washington, May 25—Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the board of Bethlehem Steel Corporation, today joined the small group of executives who thus far have reported 1934 salary and other payments in excess of $150,000.

Schwab got $250,000, the report in the Securities Commission showed.

Eugene Grace, Bethlehem president, got $180,000. R. E. McMath, vice-president, was paid $58,500.

In more prosperous times Schwab and Grace received several hundred thousand more in bonuses while their salaries were a nominal few thousand.

The report said executive officers were paid no bonuses in 1933-34.

B. M. Fairless and R. J. Wysor, Republic vice-presidents, each got $64,692, and Myron A. Wick, another vice-president, $51,744.

E. R. Crawford, Duquesne, Pa., president of the McKeesport Tin Plate Co., got $173,750, and G. V. Parkins, Elizabeth, Pa., vice-president, $124,166.

Laura Ingalls Seeks Record

By Associated Press

Los Angeles, May 25—Laura Ingalls, noted woman pilot, hopped away from Union Air Terminal in Burbank today on her second attempt to shatter Amelia Earhart's transcontinental speed record.

The tiny aviatrix was determined to send her new $40,000 black "mystery ship" over the 2447-mile route from here to New York in less than 17 hours, 7 minutes and 30 second—the time set by Amelia Earhart in 1932.

'INVERTED BOY' TO FLY

Wallace Bradley, 11, Is Marvel of Doctors; Beats Alyce's Record

By Associated Press

Fall River, May 25—Wallace Bradley, 11, of Buffalo, of whom doctors once said "it is only a matter of time" but whom Truesdale hospital surgeons have nick-named the "ninth wonder," sat up in bed today and announced he was going to fly home.

Wallace was operated upon May 15 and has amazed surgeons by the manner in which he has rallied from the delicate surgery which corrected his upside-down stomach.

He is much farther along the road to health ten days after his operation than were Alyce Jane McHenry, Omaha girl, and Jimmy Neilson of San Jose, Cal., who preceded him to the operating room for similar ailments.

In receiving his first visitors, two reporters, Wallace was quite frank. He said he didn't like reporters and that they were "hounds."

He asked them, however, to pass along a "hello" for Miss Jackson, his teacher back in Buffalo, and Arthur Grewand, his pal, who finished a drawing for him and sent it here.

Wallace was struck down by an automobile six years ago while riding a bicycle, his mother, Mrs. Mark Bradley, related, and spent more than two years in hospitals.

Mrs. Bradley doubts his wish to fly back home will be granted.

Yearning for Her Child, Ex-Mrs. Vanderbilt Suicide

Mrs. Emily Whitfield, former Beacon Hill society leader, who committed suicide at Las Vegas, N. M., yearned for her child, Patricia Vanderbilt, 9, it was revealed today.

A handyman on the ranch told of asking why she was depressed.

"I want my daughter," she told him.

A coroner's jury, which returned a verdict of suicide, was told that she feared the loss of her eyesight and was also troubled about her approaching divorce—her third.

Some friends disputed the eyesight story, saying that she always wore glasses with thick lenses and that occasionally she did not care to recognize persons who approached her.

She was widely known as the wife of Raoul Whitfield, author, and she had twice filed divorce suits against him, one of which was pending at the time of her death.

Fresh from a New York visit, she went to Sante Fe Tuesday to discuss her impending divorce with an attorney.

Victor Chervet, her bodyguard and ranch manager, told of finding her firing a .38 calibre revolver out of a window. Another attendant reloaded it for her after he had refused.

On retiring she asked for a "soothing" drink and requested the radio be turned on "loud." This was found going the next morning and the coroner fixed the time of her suicide at midnight.

BLAME ILL HEALTH

Boston friends received news of her suicide with profound regret and were prone to lay her act to ill health. The daughter Mrs. Whitfield loved dearly, they said.

"Why would she want to kill herself?" they asked. "How could she do this to the child she loved so dearly?"

Mrs. Ruth R. Suydam of Southboro, sister of her second husband, Sigourney Thayer, suggested ill health may have been partly responsible.

She said most of Mrs. Whitfield's intimate friends have known for some time she had not been well.

She married Vanderbilt in 1923.

The couple came to Boston and lived at Louisburg square while the heir to $20,000,000 worked for $8 a week as a brokerage house messenger.

Five years later she divorced her millionaire husband at Newport, R. I. on grounds of non-support.

Harvard Bell Clapper Gone

The clapper in Harvard's Memorial Hall bell was stolen again today.

The famous clapper, which was stolen once before this year and which caused the Harvard fight of 1931, disappeared at noon.

The lock on the hall door was picked and heavy padlocks were forced to gain entrance to the bell tower.

No one heard the bell ring at one o'clock.

As soon as Harvard officials were notified of the theft, they shipped a new clapper, "at hand for such emergencies," to Memorial Hall.

Human Torch Saves 7, Dies

By Associated Press

Auburn, Me., May 25—Horace Rioux, 39, laid down his life today that his family might live.

When exploding kerosene from a kitchen fire he was lighting set his clothing aflame, his only thought was for his wife and six children.

He saw them to safety while the clothing was burned from his own body.

Then he leaped into a brook. Burned over his entire body, he died a few hours later.

Girl Blameless In Fatality

Miss Barbara Eliot, 21, Wellesley College senior, was fined $200 in Brookline court today for driving so as to endanger the lives and safety of the public.

She was found not guilty of manslaughter in the death of Miss Ella J. Pearson, 30, a housemaid at 91 Middlesex road, Brookline, who was killed last Saturday.

Miss Eliot lives in Thomaston, Me.

"She suddenly stepped out from in front of a car to my right and the first thing I knew was in my path," said the girl, testifying in her own defense.

"I put on the brakes quickly and stopped in a very short distance. I was not going over 35 miles an hour."

BARBARA ELIOT

Testifying for her were her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Eliot, and a sister-in-law, Mrs. Helen Eliot, all of whom were with her at the time of the accident.

CHAIN PROTEST ON ERA BEGUN

A different sort of chain letter, one of protest to Congress and to President Roosevelt against working conditions under the ERA, was begun by Everett ERA workers today.

The chain letter protest was decided upon at a mass meeting of 250 workers in Glendale square in opposition to the new 40-hour week system.

Twenty police officers were sent to the meeting on reports that a band of Communists were en route to the meeting from Boston. The Communists failed to appear.

The workers will write to Congressman Arthur D. Healy and then send letters to ERA workers in other cities urging them, too, to send letters and have their friends do so.

Nazi Insults Close Stores

By Associated Press

Munich, Germany, May 25—Jewish shops throughout the city were compelled to close today because youthful Nazis picketed the stores and insulted persons who entered them.

The picketing began early. When the proprietors asked the youths to leave, they refused. The shops called on police, only to find the picketers would reappear the minute police turned their backs.

The window of one large store was smashed.

MILLENS, FABER Unaware of Doom

The Millen brothers and Abe Faber today remained in ignorance of Governor Curley's refusal to grant them further mental examinations.

Though Attorney George Stanley Harvey visited his clients, Irving and Murton Millen, in their Cherry Hill cells at state prison, and Mr. and Mrs. Faber saw their son, the youths were not informed of the governor's action, which virtually dooms them to the electric chair.

IT'S RAININ' DOLLARS

Needham Winners Reap Up to $700 Each in Chain Letter Golden Flow

This may be just another one of those "buildups" in the promotion of the chain letter racket.

At any rate, it was literally raining dollar bills in Needham today.

And the big winner appeared to be Mrs. Louis Langdale of Dale street, Needham, who admitted she has collected $700 from chain letters and then added the advice:

"If everybody is honest, you can't miss a nest egg."

There were others in Needham who haven't done too badly in dollar chains.

Mrs. Alice Mansfield, sister of Mrs. Langdale, appears to be second in the great cleanups. She has received $487.

John Peterson, a jeweler and another winner, appears to be doing all right too. He has collected $110 from chain letters and his name reached the top of the list only last night.

Other winners are Louis Foley, John Peterson, Mrs. John Moore and Jerry Lynch. All are winners by more than $100.

A traveling salesman brought the letter to Needham. Folks hope he will come through again with another money-making scheme.

The question now is—who will be the Peters who have to pay the Pauls.

THREAT OF VETO FOR ANY BONUS STIRS BATTLE

By Associated Press

Washington, May 25—Administration leaders were fearful today that President Roosevelt had invited trouble for his legislative program by saying he would veto any measure to which a cash bonus "rider" had been attached.

With this flat declaration from the White House, the President's advisers were apprehensive that opponents of some of the administration bills would join forces with the bonus bloc to attach a cash payment rider.

The chief executive said he would veto even the most vital administration bill if it was sent to him with a cash payment "rider."

His comment came when the bonus forces were already planning a move of that kind.

Apparently seeking to make his warning more emphatic, the President asserted he would veto the Social Security bill, which he regarded as the most vital act before Congress, if it had a cash payment amendment.

Congressional leaders of the drive for the Patman inflationary bonus bill were already eyeing the security measure as a likely vehicle for the bill which they failed to get through as separate legislation.

They were not agreed, however, on plans and were still studying the various strategic moves they might make.

While the bonus forces in Congress were canvassing their situation today, heads of the veterans' organizations were attempting to head off threats of a new "bonus march" on the capital similar to the one in 1932, which ended in bloody riots.

Strict orders were dispatched to regional commanders to stamp out any attempts to organize such a march.

They recalled vividly the trouncing the cash bonus bill got when the bonus marchers were milling about the Capitol three years ago.

From the west coast came dispatches saying that Royal Robertson, who led a California contingent of the 1932 "bonus army," had announced nearly 100 veterans enrolled for a new march within an hour after recruiting opened in Los Angeles.

Later, however, the leaders said the question whether the march actually would start would be left to Major-General Smedley D. Butler, retired Marine Corps general. They wired, asking his opinion.

At a veterans' administration hospital at Whipple, Ariz., petitions were in circulation for the recall of Senator Carl Hayden on the ground, among other things, that he opposes immediate payment of the bonus.

Legion Will Continue Bonus Fight, Says Chief

By International News Service

Reno, Nev., May 25—The American Legion will continue its fight for immediate payment of the soldier bonus during the present session of Congress, Frank N. Belgrano, Jr., national commander of the Legion, declared here

Belgrano said his organization is as strong for immediate payment of the adjusted compensation certificates as it was before the Senate sustained the Roosevelt veto of the Patman bill.

He repeated his statement opposing bonus marches on Washington as "un-American." He declared all posts had been advised to oppose such movements.

By International News Service

Los Angeles, May 25—Recruiting of the so-called "second bonus army" for its proposed march on Washington was delayed today by bitter opposition among veterans' organizations here.

Apparently unworried by warnings of leaders and opposition among many ex-soldiers, Royal W. Robertson, a leader of the 1932 bonus march, continued plans to take his group to Washington by freight trains.

The first plan was to have the bonus "marchers" ride to the national capital in automobiles.

ence in the fifteenth century, having denounced dissolute, self-indulgent wealth in his day as energetically as Father Coughlin denounces "vicious, plutocratic, capitalistic" government in New York.

Father Coughlin lives in days safer for reformers than those of the fifteenth century. Savonarola, suddenly deserted by his followers that, mob-like, turned against him, was burned alive with his two principal followers after cruel and prolonged torture on the rack. That is no longer done.

Great business men in America will sympathize with a female rabbit, something they did not expect.

A "fan-tail" pigeon, the sort that spreads its tail out like a fan, was driven from its nest by the smoke and flame of a New Jersey forest fire. It flew to a barnyard, near a hutch in which a mother rabbit was raising young ones. Knowing nothing about the difference between birds and mammals, the pigeon instantly took charge of the young rabbits, drove away the mother with pecks and wing flapping, spread her wings over the rabbit babies at night, cooed hard at them during the day.

Now the mother rabbit dares not go near the hutch. The rabbit owner, interested, puts lettuce leaves near the young rabbits, the fantail pigeon scratches around proudly, and all is well thus far.

The business man who has seen "fan-tailed" professors suddenly take charge of his business and drive away the old-fashioned business-mother rabbit must sympathize with that New Jersey bunny.

After awhile the fan-tail pigeon may learn to take care of the little rabbits better than their mammalian mother ever could do it.

Add this to your definition of "on horror's head, horrors accumulate."

The navy has secretly developed an "amplifier" device that will carry the human voice one mile. Think of that in political campaigns, with bellowing politicians heard 20 (New York city) blocks in every direction.

An ancient Greek said no people could retain its liberties if the population grew too big to gather in the public square and hear its orators.

Now the radio voice talks from America to China, and the actual voice can travel a mile, with all its crudity.

There is "good in all evil," however. The new amplifier will make it possible to quiet panic-stricken crowds, and should increase safety on ships at sea, enabling the captain to give instructions distinctly heard to every soul on board the ship in trouble.

The first apparatus will be completed for the President, who recently was unable to talk satisfactorily to the thousands of farmers that gathered on the White House lawn.

Financial columns show that Henry Ford's balance this year increased by $3,759,311, making a total of $580,276,391.

Five hundred and eighty million dollars is more than the "nine million dollars" which, according to Senator Huey Long's speech on the radio, is all that Henry Ford should be allowed to have.

The limit of cash set by Senator Long at nine millions would make it hard to run the Ford plant, where increased wages have recently added twenty-four millions a year to the payroll.

The best plan at present is to let every man get as much as his ability makes possible (he cannot take it to Heaven) OBLIGING him to use it legally, and EXHORTING him to use it generously.

Do you wonder why successful men come from farms rather than from city streets? New York school children explain it. One believes that an angry cow would eat rabbits. Another supposes that pigs, like birds, parrots especially, come in all colors, green, purple; a turkey's comb "is made of paper," the spurs on its legs are "buttons," and a turkey can take them off. A turkey's "gobbling" is guessed at as "hollering, barking, crying."

ROOSEVELTS SEE SON RACE

By Associated Press

Annapolis, Md., May 25—Waving gretings to groups along the way, President and Mrs. Roosevelt arrived here by automobile today to attend the Adams Cup regatta.

Their son, Franklin, Jr., will participate as a member of the Harvard junior varsity crew.

Accompanying the President and Mrs. Roosevelt were Mr. and Mrs. John Boettiger and children, Miss Ethil Dupont, Secretary and Mrs. Morgenthau and children, Miss Grace Tully and Mrs. Malvina Scheider, Henry Osthagen, Captain and Mrs. Wilson Brown, Mrs. Louise M. Howe, Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Hopkins, Mr. and Mrs. Rexord G. Tugwell, Mrs. Donner Roosevelt, Mrs. Isabella Greenway, Representative from Arizona, and Mr. and Mrs. James Roosevelt.

Because of the large number of guests, Mr. Roosevelt arranged a return to the White House tonight.

The President decided to watch the shells at close range from a seat in the referee's boat. This put an end to speculation as to whether the Commander-in-Chief of the Navy, himself a Harvard graduate, would sit with the Navy rooters or the visitors.

Hsinking, Manchoukuo, May 25 (AP)—Japanese headquarters announced today that Sua Yung Chin, leader of Chinese irregulars, against whom a Japanese army expedition has been directed in northern China, was killed along with several followers in a battle today.

Car Skids 72 Feet, 7 Hurt

An attempt to test the speed of a new stream-lined automobile, according to police, today landed seven young Malden shoe workers in the hospital.

Swerving around a corner at Adams and Commercial streets, the fast car skidded 72 feet, slid 25 feet across a sidewalk and crashed into a pole, they said.

Joseph R. Aldorifio of Bosson street, Revere, admitted driving the car, police charged as they took out a complaint of driving so as to endanger lives.

Aldorifio and his six passengers were taken to Malden Hospital.

They were Vincent Aldorifio, also of Bosson street, Revere; Vincent Rubbico of Tapley avenue, Revere; Louis Golini and Alphonso Chiampi of May street, Revere; Bennie Mazzerella of Dudley street, Dorchester and Patsy Casullo of Everett street, Boston.

MOTHER DIES as Boy Graduates

Who'll Adopt Me?

Blue-Eyed, Red-Haired Boy Offered

MOTHER ASKS HOME FOR HER BABY

And he wants a home, a permanent home with mother and father to bring him up as other youngsters are reared.

His name is Robert, although he doesn't know it yet.

But soon he will be rounding out gurgles into intelligible phrases of dadda and ma-ma for a couple who will take him as their own.

His father is unemployed and can't support him.

His mother, though it breaks her heart to part with him, is also without means of support.

Tale of Sacrifice

And so she brought her tale of supreme sacrifice to the Boston Evening American in the hope that her baby will be adopted.

The infant boy is the son of Jewish parents. His mother asks that he be adopted by a Jewish family, that he might be reared in the traditional canons of her faith.

Presently the baby is being cared for by a Linden woman—boarded out, since the mother has no place to tend to him.

The mother declares the baby is healthy and normal.

"He is a bundle of joy," she said, "but I can't keep him. I owe him a decent start in life. I can't give it to him.

"I am willing to turn him over legally to someone who will take him and care for him as every child shoud be. I am willing to make the sacrifice.

Oglethorpe Degree for Miss Cannon

Discoverer of 300 variable stars and five new ones, Annie Jump Cannon, of the Harvard University Astronomical Observatory, will receive an honorary degree of Doctor of Science from Oglethorpe University tomorrow.

Miss Cannon, who is 73, was the first person in the world with the exception of King George V of England to be elected an honorary member of the Royal Astronomical Society of London.

At Harvard, she is the curator of astronomical photographs and has completed a catalogue of 286,000 stellar spectra. She is now making an extension of this catalogue giving the spectra of the very faintest stars.

Thieves Loot Five Offices

Burglars broke into four buildings near North Station today, looted half a dozen offices and escaped with an undetermined amount of cash.

First entrance was gained by jimmying the front door of 53 Beverly street. On the fourth floor the office of the Melrose Curtain Company was broken into, and the combination broken off the safe. Officials were checking the amount of money mising.

Crossing by a fire escape to 41 Beverly street, the burglars entered the offices of Englund & Freedson on the third floor and of Henry McManus on the second floor. Nothing of value was obtained.

Failing to get any loot at the B. & M. Liniment Co. at 73 Beverly street, the gang apparently made its way through a skylight and over the roof to No. 65, where they cracked the safe in the Flexible Shoe Company. About $500 was believed stolen there.

Police said the breaks appeared to be the work of the same gang which looted Canal street buildings last Sunday.

HUTCHINS OF

Mr. Hutchins, who has been a member of the editorial staff of Hearst business papers for several years, is a graduate of the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science.

Thurston's Magic Wins Him Bride

By Associated Press

New York, May 25—Fifteen years ago Howard Thurston put a box of candy into his tall silk hat. Today the famous magician pulled a bride out.

He and Pauline Mark, 27, a divorcee of North Adams, Mass., were married last night secretly at Harrison, N. Y. Today, aboard the liner Shawnee just before they sailed for a honeymoon in Florida, they told of their long romance.

When Thurston appeared fifteen years ago in Chicago he turned a box of candy into a white rabbit for an amazed little girl he had called to the stage. He gave it to her and won her love.

The magician played in Chicago again recently. The little girl of 15 years ago came to visit him. She became his stage partner until their wedding.

Thurston, who is 65, said he expects to live to be 100. The maagician said the longevity secret, of Hindoor origin, involves the mentality, but he would not disclose it.

21 Seized in 'Love Castle'

Providence, May 25—Twenty-one high school boys and girls were seized by police today in a house on Cranston street described as a "love castle."

A man and woman, said to be the operators of the place, were also taken into custody.

The school children, ranging in age from 14 to 18 years, were questioned singly and in groups for hours at police headquarters.

Their parents were notified to call for them.

Some were later recalled for further questioning.

Police said an admission fee of 10 cents for girls ad 15 cents for boys was charged, and that "necking" was freely permitted.

A number of the boys and girls readily admitted the "petting parties," officials said.

Complaints from school authorities led to the raid by Captain Joseph L. Burns and a squad of officers after the place had been watched for several hours.

NAZI FLIER

Freed by France

Avesnes, France, May 25 (AP)—Adolf Bauer, young German flier, who was fined for landing his airplane on French soil, took off for Germany today after funds were telegraphed him to pay the fine.

The youth, unable to speak French, explained through an interpreter that he got his directions mixed on a flight from Dusseldorf to Bremen, and thought he was in the Netherlands when he landed to get his bearings.

He was fined 50 francs.

ELAINE Just John's PROTEGE

FATHER SEES NO ROMANCE

By Universal Service

New York, May 25—Elaine Barrie, 19-year-old protege of John Barrymore, is Elaine Jacobs, Hunter College student, it was learned today.

In an exclusive interview, her father, Louis Jacobs, a traveling salesman, told of the meeting between his daughter and the famous actor, whose guest she now is on a Havana cruise. He said:

"Elaine has always been interested in the Barrymore family. When she heard John was in town, she wrote to him. He didn't answer. Then he got sick, and she called him up at the hospital, and made an appointment. She went there and did a little sketch for him—she's always been theatrically inclined — and he liked it a lot.

"Mrs. Jacobs is on the boat with her, you know. Elaine's mother and I once tried to talk her out of wanting to go on the stage, but it was no use, she's got a mind of her own."

Elaine is "exceptionally brilliant," and won a number of medals for excellence in French while at Julia Richman High School, her father said.

He scoffed at reports of romance between Elaine and the veteran actor, declaring:

"This business about romance and love is just poppycock. Barrymore just thinks Elaine's wonderful material to make a star out of."

So devoted is Elaine to her film star friend that the apartment walls are "plastered with pictures of him she cut out of magazines and newspapers," Jacobs said. He went on:

"I wouldn't be surprised if she took the name of Barrie out of admiration for him."

Don Juan Won't Pay Dolores' Debts Any More

By Associated Press

Los Angeles, May 25—The next move in the puzzling game of hearts played by John Barrymore, the roving actor, appeared to rest today with his wife, Dolores Costello Barrymore.

The beautiful Dolores, who once sailed the briny deep with her husband, is land-bound with her two children in her New York home here.

Attorneys for the two resumed a clam-like silence.

Added to this, a cryptic legal notice remained in print in a court publication today. It was significant enough to lend confirmation to previous indications that the Barrymores' wedded affairs were headed for the rocks. It read:

"Notice is hereby given that the undersigned will not be responsible for any debts or liabilities contracted by any person other than myself, on or after this date, May 3, 1935. (Signed) JOHN BARRYMORE."

Barrymore's attorney, Colonel William H. Neblett, admitted attempts were being made with Mrs. Barrymore's counsel to reach a property settlement agreement, but declared Barrymore did not intend to sue for divorce.

"We have no way of telling what Mrs. Barrymore will do," he said.

Warm Week-End Promised Here

It may be Spring somewhere, but not in Mrs. Crocker's cranberry bog.

The official temperature there this morning, as recorded by the official United States Government weather report from Marston's Mills, on the Cape, was 18 degrees. Which is just 14 degrees below freezing.

On the icy summit of Mt. Washington it was 25.

But cheer up—the long promised warm weather is actually coming. In Boston the thermometer climbed to 68 by 11 a. m. and the weather man said it would get into the 70s tomorrow, for the first time since May 11.

HELD FOR U. S.

In Letter Burning

The burning of letters in a United States mail box is a violation of the federal laws and not against the state or a municipality.

This was the ruling today of Judge Samuel Cutler in Chelsea court, who declined to act in the case of Thomas Welch of Beacon street, Chelsea, accused of burning letters in a mail box.

Judge Cutler ordered Welch held until postal officials could be notified.

Smoker Sets Fire

Charles Leary, 35, escaped serious burns and saved his home in Tremont street, Roxbury, from burning today, when he awoke to find his bed afire, ignited by sparks from his pipe.

Another Romance on Rocks

The parting of the ways between John Barrymore, screen hero, and his beautiful wife, the former Dolores Costello, came to a climax today when a legal notice published in Los Angeles warned that Barrymore would not be responsible for debts "contracted by any person other than self." At the same time the actor was sailing aboard his yacht with pretty Elaine Barrie.

Mash note writer, stage and screen aspirant, 19-year-old Elaine Barrie is sailing for the West Indies aboard John Barrymore's yacht Infanta. Her acquaintance with the star began when she wrote offering to nurse him when he was sick. With divorce between Barrymore and his wife in the air, both he and Elaine scoff at romance. ## Gay Danish Welcome to Prince, Bride

By Associated Press

Stockholm, May 25—The Danish royal yacht Danneborg, steamed southward through the Swedish archipelago today, carrying Prince Frederik, heir to the Danish throne, and Crown Princess Ingrid to Copenhagen for a continuation of their wedding festivities.

The couple, married here yesterday, had the yacht to themselves. While Stockholm streets were jammed as the public participated in an all-night carnival, King Christian and Queen Alexandrine departed by train for Copenhagen.

Denmark will attempt to outdo Sweden in the celebrations, starting tomorrow afternoon with street processions.

On arrival in Copenhagen they will parade through the city in an open carriage. A dinner will be held at night in the palace for 150 guests. A grand ball at the castle of Christianborg will be held Tuesday night.

Killed by Truck

Wayland, May 25—William Wheeler was killed instantly when a tractor he was unloading from a truck tipped over, pinning him beneath it.

Pick Roosevelt But Not Party

By Associated Press

New Brunswick, N. J., May 25—Seniors at the New Jersey College for Women consider Franklin D. Roosevelt the greatest living international figure, but they do not favor his political party.

The seniors, in their annual poll, voted Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins the woman they admired most in contemporary life.

SHIP STRIKE

Plea Sent Roosevelt

Camden, N. J., May 25 (AP)—Mayor Von Neida of Camden has written to President Roosevelt and members of his cabinet, urging them to takes teps to end the strike at the New York Shipbuilding Corporation yard.

The mayor said the strike is about to enter its third week and that of the 4600 men affected more than 500 already have gone on relief.

DIONNE Peace Pact SEEN

BIRTHDAY MAY END QUINS ROW

By International News Service

Toronto, Ont., May 25—Ontario government officials expressed hope today that the birthday celebration for the Dionne quintuplets on Tuesday will remove all friction between the parents and guardians of the babies.

They said Oliva and Elzire Dionne would probably join Ontario Welfare Minister Croll in the birthday radio broadcast Tuesday evening from the Dafoe Hospital outside Callander, which will be heard over a Canadian and United States hookup.

Dr. A. R. Dafoe and Judge J. A. Valin, chairman of the board of guardians, also are expected to speak.

The parents have been invited to broadcast also and if they do so it is believed here this will indicate the friction between both sides is being ironed out.

There will be no party for the famous five on their birthday but many presents have come for the babies from the United States and Canada. These gifts include diamond rings for each of them.

Nuns Can't Go to Quins to Act as Nurses

By Associated Press

Callander, Ont., May 25—The guardians of the Dionne quintuplets encountered a hitch today in their plans to make a change in nurses for the babies.

It had been understood that the grey nuns of Mattawa Hospital would take over June 1 the duties begun and carried on by the Red Cross.

The rules of the order, it now develops, do not permit the nuns to leave the hospital on such duty.

Judge J. A. Valin, one of the guardians under the special law by which the babies are wards of the King, indicated today that negotiations were under way with nurses of another order which he declined to name.

It is the desire of the parents that the children be raised in the French language and the Catholic faith, and the legal guardians are determined that this shall be done.

Dr. Dafoe Denies Mrs. Dionne Barred

Callander, Ont., May 25—Reports that Mrs. Dionne was barred from her five little daughters Sunday afternoon brought an emphatic denial from Dr. A. R. Dafoe today.

Asked if the babies' nurse, Louise De Kiriline had slammed the hospital door in Mrs. Dionne's face or told her to go away, he said:

"That is utterly false."

Nurse De Kiriline had been quoted as saying to Mrs. Dionne:

"Don't you come up those steps."

And when Mrs. Dionne, accompanied by several cousins requested just a little peek at her sleeping babies, the nurse was supposed to have repeated in vigorous French:

"Don't come up those steps."

CURLEY,

Council, Go Fishing

Greenville, Me., May 25—Governor James M. Curley and members of the Massachusetts executive council met in public session on Squaw Mountain Bay of Moosehead Lake here today. There being no appointments before the council, everybody fished.

Governor Louis Brann's week-end fishing party for notables and others drew upwards of 200 persons to Squaw Mountain Inn. Governor Curley fished with Secretary Dick Grant and Edmund L. Dolan. Early arrivals included Governor Bridges of New Hampshire, Governor Smith of Vermont, and Governor George H. Early of Pennsylvania, who flew by Forestry Department seaplane to Eagle Lake.

SHAUGHNESSY

to Be Honored

The junction of Walnue avenue and Warren street, Roxbury, will be dedicated tomorrow morning as Herbert P. Shaughnessy square in honor of the late state representative from that district.

After services at Shaughnessy's grave in Calvary Cemetery, veterans and Democratic organizations will proceed to the square, where Representative Abraham I. Zimon will conduct the ceremony. The Rev. E. G. Ring of St. Joseph's Church will deliver the benediction.

Mrs. Anna Shaughnessy, moth[illegible] of the war veteran, will unveil the marker.

MOSCOW WORKERS 'SLAVE' 17 HOURS A DAY TO EAT

(Editor's Note: Post-war social and economic progress in Latvia, a capitalistic Baltic republic, is compared to that of Soviet Russia in the following article.)

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1935, by International News Service)

Riga, Latvia, May 25—Capitalism in the Baltic States has rebuilt society since the war faster and better than Communism has rebuilt Russia.

Grant the Soviet Union all the progress claimed and in part actually accomplished by its two five year plans.

Nevertheless the record of reconstruction in those little states which used to be part of Russia, and which broke away from Communist Russia and stuck to capitalism, is even more impressive.

Communists insist their whole attempt to rebuild society in Russia was hampered by war, and civil war to a degree unknown in any other country, and therefore you cannot properly compare the standard of living in the Soviet Union with that in countries which suffered less in the period 1914-1920.

Russia did suffer incredibly, and certainly more than any other great power. But how about these little powers? Did one-third of Russia's population die or flee the country? No. Was Russia's entire industrial equipment, every machine in every factory in the country removed to another country and never returned? No.

Population Halved

But this is what happened to Latvia. Her population in 1914 was 2,550,000: In 1920 it was 1,600,000. Nearly 1,000,000 of her inhabitants were killed in action, died or fled.

Besides losing virtually all her industrial equipment, physically dismantled and moved to Russia when the Germans attacked, one fourth of all the farm buildings in Latvia were destroyed, about one-fifth of her livestock died, and land under cultivation diminished by a third to one-half.

They still break saws on the bullets in the trees near Riga. You can still see the trenches on the road from Riga to Libau.

Near that city we wandered for an hour through the debris in the melancholy halls of the vast palace of the Duke of Courland which, burned by Avaloff-Bermondt, leader of German guerilla warriors, has just now received a roof.

Long after the war stopped in the west, 100,000 Letts had to go on fighting Russian reds and German bandits, and in 1918-20 3200 Letts fell in battle. Twelve thousand Letts were killed in the Russian civil war. Seventy thousand fell in the World War, a total of 85,200.

Riga Decimated

This would compare proportionately with Russia's losses. But, regard Riga, once more today a city of enterprise, business, and ambition. It had before the war 550,000 population.

After the front had swept back and forth across the city five times, it had in 1919 a population of 100,000.

Not even Petrograd.

Today Riga has 380,000 inhabitants. Many of them are industrial workers, poor people. How do they compare with the industrial workers, also poor people, in Moscow?

Moscow's Communism exists to do everything possible for poor people. Moscow declares capitalism exists to do everything for the rich and nothing for the poor. What does Riga do for its poor?

City Acts as 'Mama'

They were full of beef and spinach soup, jello and milk, and they slept like babies are supposed to sleep. The capitalist city of Riga was their mama for the day.

Every day 3000 Riga children toddle through the doors of 30 kindergartens where the city and its capitalist inhabitants feed them, clothe them, and keep them busy from 8 o'clock in the morning to 6 o'clock in the evening.

Altogether the city supports 7200 children from seven months to 8 years old. They are the children of working class parents, and for the most part it costs their parents nothing.

Out of 160 children in this kindergarten only 15 pay anything at all, and their parents, better off than the others, pay the equivalent of 3 to 9 American cents a day.

Each child gets three meals a day and on the bottom of each of their china bowls is a picture. The game is to eat every bit so you can see the picture, and the effort is to make each child eat as much as he can. We shared their lunch and it was good enough for the most delicate palate.

Factory Nursery

In Moscow we also visited a nursery, in the Frezer factory. It was exactly comparable. It took care of 140 children from 3 to 7 years old, from 7:30 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. and fed them three meals a day.

The only differences were that the Riga nursery was better equipped and that each and every Moscow child had to pay! The Moscow system was to take the father's salary, divide it by the number of persons in the family, and take half of that as the nursery fee.

In Communist Moscow every child pays for itself. In capitalist Riga 10 per cent of the workers with children in the nursery pay for themselves and the other 90 per cent are paid for by the city, which means the taxpayers, which means in the last analysis the capitalists.

Communists would reply:

The average Riga wage is 80 lats a month, equivalent to $26. The average Moscow wage is 150 rubles a month, equivalent in purchasing power to $15.

To buy provisions for himself for a week an unskilled Riga workman has to work 10 hours, but the Moscow workman has to work 17 hours to buy the same.

On the basis of a state that was ruined by the armed struggle of 1914-1920 at least as badly as Russia, Capitalist Latvia has erected a social system that pays its workmen 40 per cent more than a Communist Russia, and provides them with social service—of which Riga's nurseries are but one example—at least the equal and in many cases the superior of the Communist social service.

POLICE PROBING 'BANGO' RIOT

Whether Thomas Carey of Embassy road, Brighton, will be allowed to promote any more "Bango" parties at the Boston Arena after the riot there, is something police are trying to decide today.

Investigation is underway to determine if the incident that provoked all the trouble—the award of the capital prize of $500—was what Carey claimed, just an honest misunderstanding.

Since officials are inclined to believe that it was, they said there was little likelihood of pressing charges against the promoter. He was arrested on suspicion of being concerned in a lottery.

WOMAN INJURED

The riot, one of the wildest the city has witnessed in recent years and probably the worst disturbance the Arena has housed, sent one woman to City Hospital and left dozens of others bruised, their clothing torn, police said.

Miss Elizabeth McCarthy of East Sixth street, South Boston, was the casualty. She said she was hit over the head by someone wielding a corrugated cardboard.

Blake's Death Recalls Mamie O'Rourke Romance

By Associated Press

New York, May 25—James W. Blake, who immortalized memories of a happy childhood in one of the greatest song hits, is dead—in poverty.

Death of cancer came to the 73-year-old author of the lyric of "The Sidewalks of New York" last night. Former Governor Alfred E. Smith, to whose presidential campaign the piece was a there song, had come to his aid.

Blake, who actually had danced to hurdy-gurdy melodies with Mamie O'Rourke on the sidewalks of East Eighteenth street, wrote the words to the music by Charles B. Lawlor, a vaudeville actor, while working in a hat store in 1894.

It took 30 minutes and when Blake had finished the name of Mamie O'Rourke, a pretty girl who had lived next door, was adroitly rhymed for posterity with "New York" to the infectious three-quarter beat of the music.

The number, which even now sells 5000 copies a year, was disposed of outright by Lawlor and Blake for $2500 each.

Lawlor died, blind, in 1925.

Heir to Billion Kidnaped; $200,000 Ransom Demanded

was being made throughout the city for the boy, who dropped from sight while returning home yesterday noon from the Lowell school.

Authorities indicated their refusal to comment was based on the fear the boy's life might be endangered if they interfered.

MAINTAIN SECRECY

The report that the son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Weyerhaeuser, Jr., had been kidnaped arose when a crowd in front of the residence at 6:15 p. m., yesterday, saw a special delivery postoffice motorcycle messenger call at the mansion.

Then it became known that Bowling had been summoned into conference with local authorities. In face of this development, the family remained in seclusion, both parents near collapse.

Meantime, an all night search, carried on by police and many volunteer searchers, had failed to disclose a trace of the lad in the woodland hillsides and gullies near the exclusive district in which he lived and went to school.

MANSION BLAZE OF LIGHT

As though a beacon to guide him, Weyerhaeuser timber dynasty's mansion blazed until dawn for the mysteriously missing George.

The lad's parents, reported near collapse, had denied themselves to all but four or five close friends and relatives.

Among them was Ingram whom they had named contact man between the family and the police seeking the child.

Friends said that although George is heir to one of the northwest's biggest timber baronies, he has been reared like a normal, middle-class child.

All yesterday afternoon and last night there was a constant procession of automobiles to the home, bearing friends offering sympathy and aid. And all afternoon and night the home was deluged by telephone calls.

SISTER WAITED IN VAIN

Police were notified, and with schoolmates, an extensive search was started.

When he left school the kidnaped boy was to have called at the Annie Wright Seminary, five blocks away, to go home with a sister, Anne, 13. He failed to arrive there.

His sister went home, after waiting for a time, and the family did not become alarmed until some time later.

THIRD $200,000 RANSOM

There have been only two other kidnaping cases in the records in which $200,000 ransom was demanded—and both have been solved.

They are the Urschel and Bremer kidnapings.

All but one major member of the Karpis-Barker gang which kidnaped Edward Bremer have been captured.

It is likely the G-Men may consider Karpis as a possible ringleader in the Tacoma case.

Next to Karpis, the G-Men desire most to capture Thomas H. Robinson, Jr., kidnaper of Mrs. Berry Stoll of Louisville.

Kidnaped Boy Heir to Vast Timber Empire

By Associated Press

Minneapolis, May 25—The family of George Weyerhaeuser, 9, who was missing from his home in Tacoma, Washington, today, is closely linked with the northwest's history of forest wealth.

The child is related to the late Frederick Weyerhaeuser, who, as one of the first "lumber barons," was famous in Minnesota and Wisconsin.

An immigrant from Germany, the senior Weyerhaeuser first tried his hand in Pennsylvania. His success in that venture only mediocre, he moved on to Illinois.

In that state, in Rock Island, the parent firm of the present large Weyerhaeuser industries was founded and still operates, although the sawmill on the Mississippi which was the basis for the early success has long since ceased operation.

Then as forests in the Northwest diminished, the Weyerhaeuser hand reached westward into Washington, Oregon and Idaho, with the senior member still guiding affairs. In 1914 he died and the late J. O. Weyerhaeuser took over the business.

He served as head of the growing interests until a few years ago, when he yielded to his son, J. Philip Weyerhaeuser, the coast lumberman.

Only last week, on May 16, the career of the second of the "lumber barons" came to an end with his death.

U. S. Hurls All Agents Into Kidnap Hunt

Washington, May 25—All available Justice Department agents on the West coast were concentrated today on the kidnaping of George Weyerhaeuser, son of a wealthy Tacoma, Wash., lumberman.

J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the division of investigation, was notified of the abduction, but declined to make any comment except to say:

"We are working on the case."

It was understood the Canadian authorities in Vancouver also were co-operating on the suspicion that the Weyerhaeuser lad had possibly been taken across the border.

Specially trained members of the department's kidnaping squad will work on the case. Among the initial clues was a careful study of the kidnaping note.

Town Clerk Dies

Whitinsville, May 25 (INS)—Town clerk in Northbridge 45 years, Joseph A. Johnston, 72, died in his home here today.

MOORE FREED IN 'KING' DEATH

John J. Moore, 42, of Commonwealth avenue, Brighton, today was found not guilty of the murder and armed robbery of Charles "King" Solomon, in the Cotton Club slaying of January 24, 1933.

The jury which acquitted him in Suffolk superior court deliberated only an hour before returning its verdict.

Five indictments as accessory after the murder and robbery of Solomon remained against Moore, and he was temporarily remanded to custody.

In consideration of the fact that the three principals to whom he was charged with being an accessory had been found not guilty, Judge Vincent Brogna later ordered Moore released in his own recognizance.

Monday the indictments will be disposed of.

MYSTERY MAN LINKED WITH KILLING OF 3

Middlebury, Vt., May 25—To Seattle, Wash., 3000 miles away, Vermont officials turned today for a possible solution to the triple murder mystery of East Mountain.

The clue that has shifted the investigation was turned up by State's Attorney John Conley after a careful check of the movements of a mystery man who appeared in Vermont late in 1931 and disappeared a year later.

Today the Seattle detectives were seeking to locate and question a man said to be wealthy.

He has been identified as the man whose mysterious actions, as revealed exclusively in the Boston Evening American yesterday, aroused the suspicions of residents of Bristol nearly three years ago.

CHECK ACTIVITIES

A careful check of his actions in Bristol, three years ago, revealed the following facts, the Boston Evening American has learned:

He arrived at the Bristol hotel and engaged a room where he lived less than a month.

He purchased a farm house for $5000, paying for it in cash. He spent several thousand more to renovate the house. The work was paid for in cash.

SELLS HIS HOME

Before taking up occupancy he directed that all of the windows be painted white so that it would be impossible to peer into them.

A few months later he purchased a new automobile of expensive make and kept it until February 1932, about six months, and then sold it to a local garage man.

On the day he sold the automobile for a price said to be $100, providing the purchaser would drive him to Middlebury, he left for New York.

He stopped in Middlebury only long enough to authorize a local auctioneer to sell the home, directing him to forward whatever was realized on the house to the Pacific Bank in Seattle.

Harvard Man in Art Test

By Associated Press

New York, May 25—Four young men went into solitary confinement today in a battle of architectural wits which will mean 30 months of freedom in Paris to the winner.

The quartet will be locked up for 36 hours in "cells" at the Beaux-Arts Institute of Design wrestling with a secret problem in architecture prepared for them by the Society of Beaux-Arts Architects which annually for 28 years has given a scholarship at the famous school of that name in Paris to the most promising young American architect it could find.

The four will have their meals passed in by Fred Clark, executive secretary of the society, who is to forego sleep for a day and a half in the interests of art.

In the next two weeks, three 36-hour tests will be held and the winner selected.

P. M. Hefferman, Ames, Iowa, of Harvard; Adrian Waldorf, Brooklyn, and Thomas T. Russell, Philadelphia, both University of Pennsylvania, and L. W. Smith, Brooklyn, of Princeton.

SOCIAL WORKER OUSTING URGED

Unless Mayor Mansfield and John L. Dowling, executive director of the welfare department, abolish the position of medical social consultant to welfare recipients, the City Council will be asked to do it.

Without naming the woman holding the position the councillor declared that instead of performing the duties he had been engaged to do she was going about among welfare recipients preaching birth control.

The councillor declared that he was dissatisfied with the attitude of the welfare department officials toward his protest.

Attorney General Paul A. Dever made this disclosure today after checking a list of registered salesmen and brokers sent by the Department of Public Utilities at his request.

"I am going to take this up with the securities division," said Dever.

EX-CHIEF QUILTY of Springfield Dies

Springfield, May 25 (AP)—William J. Quilty, who retired as chief of police January 20, 1932, after 45 years' connection with the department, died today. He would have been 79 in August.

FRACAS TIMED BY SUSPECTS POLICE SAY

Police declared todadyay that the free-for-all fight staged at Back Bay station upon arrival of three Fall River mail robbery suspects was undoubtedly planned by the so-called Rettich gang.

Far from starting accidentally, the fracas had been planned well in advance, officials said.

If it had not been for immediate and drastic action by guards, all three prisoners would have been freed, it was believed.

The trio—Charles Harrigan, Thomas "Tough Tommy" Dugan and John "Dummy" McGlone were safely behind East Cambridge jail bars an hour after the melee, however.

They will remain there under close guard until Monday morning when they will be brought to federal court here.

In court they will answer to indictments charging them with being principals in the $129,000 robbery for which Carlo Rettich, Joseph Fisher and others are blamed.

The three men had been captured in New York, and after a hearing in which they fought extradition to this state, they were ordered surrendered to Boston postal inspectors.

The disturbance started as the prisoners and their guards were getting into the prison van for transportation to Cambridge. They had just gotten off the New York train.

Photographers were flashing bulbs in attempts to picture the prisoners when Harrigan jerked away from the inspector to whom he was manacled. The other two prisoners followed suit.

A crowd of about 200, gathered about, closed in and fists began to fly. It took violent measures by police and federal men to quell the disturbance.

The guards to whom the three were manacled dragged their captives towards the van and then heaved them in as police and other inspectors broke up the crowd.

DOCTOR KILLED IN 120-FOOT PLUNGE

Dr. Elias Goldberg, 51, a physician with an office on Norfolk street, Dorchester, and a home in Brookline, plunged 120 feet to his death today from the ninth floor of the Park Square Building.

He had been ill for three years, causing his virtual retirement from practice, and had suffer stock market losses.

His body struck in Providence street near the curb. Scores of persons heard the thud. Some narrowly missed being struck.

An open window nine stories above told part of the story. Inside this window, on the floor, a newspaper open to the stock market page told more.

WIDELY KNOWN

Dr. Goldberg was a graduate of Tufts Medical School, '05, and formerly lived in Chelsea.

He was widely known in Dorchester. His office was in Codman square.

According to his nephew, Dr. Leo Golden, who has a dentist's office there, Dr. Goldberg made his home in recent years with a brother, on Russell street, Brookline.

Dr. Goldberg entered the Park Square Building at opening time and remarked to the elevator boys, whom he knew well:

"I'm not feeling very well."

"LOST HIS SHIRT"

"You're in early," said Stuart.

"Yes, I am," said Dr. Goldberg. "How's the stock market going for you?"

"Pretty tough," said the physician. "I've lost everything, even my shirt. I'm going upstairs to get a little air."

He walked to the ninth floor.

According to attaches of the stock broker's office, he reappeared yesterday after a long absence and asked quotations.

A man who saw him there, and asked him how he felt, quoted him as saying:

"I want to die and die quick."

His nephew said he had neuritis and at times had lost the use of his hands and legs. He had practiced in Dorchester 25 years.

165 WARSHIPS TO 'ATTACK' HONOLULU

By Associated Press

Honolulu, May 25—Roaring seaplanes sweeping in non-stop flight from Midway Island, 1323 miles to the west, presaged the arrival here today of the greatest array of naval craft ever to visit this important cross-roads of the Pacific.

Preceded by the navy's distance flying squadron VP10, 165 surface craft of the United States fleet moved on Pearl Harbor for an unprecedented test of the facilities of the $35,000,000 naval base.

Never before has such a concentration of naval craft been attempted in this Hawaiian shelter, which rests under the guns of the strongest American fortifications existing anywhere.

Because of its tremendous strategic importance to the United States in the event of war in the Pacific, the highest chieftains of the navy were on hand to judge the performance of Pearl Harbor in harboring the mighty fleet.

The spectacular dash from Midway of Squadron VP10, which won its laurels last year in an unprecedented mass flight from California to Hawaii, afforded a smashing climax to the navy's mid-Pacific war games.

Preceded by 26 other planes, which moved in from Frigate shoals, only 500 miles distant, the famous squadron of flying boats alighted safely in Pearl Harbor last night after the dash from Midway under personal command of Rear Admiral Alfred W. Johnson.

Creamy Lotion Prevents Sunburn

Filters Out Ultra-Violet Rays and Assures Lovely Even Tan

By The Beauty Editor

IT MAKES no difference whether you swim at Bailey's Beach or at Revere—the hot summer sun will beat down just as relentlessly.

"Come on in, the water's fine," is an invitation that most people cannot resist on a sweltering day—nor should they.

—POSED BY DOLORES DEL RIO

Lying on soft, white sands, drinking in the revitalizing rays of the warm sun, with an occasional splash into an invigorating salt sea, is at once a tonic and exercise for tired bodies.

No matter where you take yourself this summer, you'll want to give your skin soothing, lubricating care to prevent aging dryness and discoloration. Not to mention sunburn.

Happily there are precautions which can be taken so that no painful results from over-indulgence in sun-bathing may occur.

There's a brand new sun lotion on the market which hails straight from a famous Fifth avenue salon. It is a creamy, greaseless liquid, tinted rachel, so that it is completely invisible on the skin.

It filters out the ultra-violate rays of the sun—allows only the good sunshine to reach the skin—and permits the painless promotion of a flattering evenly bronzed skin.

Naturally, it prevents sunburns. The frequency of application and the quantity used must be determined by yourself, as much depends on the individual skin texture.

A very sensitive delicate skin, for example, requires a thicker film of the lotion than an oily or normal skin, and should be applied at hourly intervals at the very beginning of the season.

Don't wait until the last minute before giving a thought to protective lotions. The only way to acquire a fine even tan this summer is to give your skin protection the very first day you venture on the beach. It makes no difference whether or no you take a dip in the briny deep—if your skin is exposed—it must first be given a rich lubrication.

To learn the name of this new sunburn preventive that filters out the ultra-violet rays of the sun, call The Beauty Editor, Liberty 4000, or write to her at the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Beauty Answers

Question—What is good for a cold sore? I am troubled with them frequently and would be glad to know how to cure them up. Will you please print the answer in your column and what causes them?

Jean M., Watertown.

Answer—Don't monkey with cold sores. They can become troublesome. Camphor and peroxide are the old standby cures, yet they often produce swelling. Nature and time are the best doctors for these horrid blemishes. Their cause is not definitely known, but the guess is that they are by-product of digestive and intestinal upsets.

• • •

Question—Although I am only 40 years old, I have what is called a "dowager's hump." Is there a set of exercises that might help to overcome this round-shouldered look? My face is unlined and quite youthful looking, but I look years older than I am because of this "hump."

Mrs. Mary D., East Milton.

Answer—Yes, I have a set of exercises for beautifying the shoulders and removing a roll of fat at the back of the neck. These exercises include a circular swing movement, a shoulder and arm exercise and a spine limbering exercise. To obtain this leaflet write to the Beauty Editor, Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Stephen Bests Crook

CHAPTER 27

There were sing-song girls that evening, who came through the door back of Hester, mincing 'round the table on their bound feet, leaning over the men's shoulders, pouring out their wine.

"The agent certainly spared no pains this evening, evidently wants to be friendly," said Stephen when they were at home again. "We must invite him and his wife here to our house."

But before Stephen arranged this, Liu had invited them to a third feast. On the afternoon of the day, the merchant called on a matter of business.

In their long conversation, the question of leakage came up and Stephen gathered, he did not know how, so adroitly did Liu convey his meaning, that if he would falsify the amount of the leakage, the profits might be divided.

He was angry and curtly refused. Too curtly, he realized after he had spoken. Fortunately, the agent accepted his defeat gracefully, bowing himself out, clasping his own hands according to the best Chinese custom.

That hour passed and a second. "Liu's evidently been detained, and thinks it wouldn't be polite to send anyone else. Time doesn't mean anything to them." Stephen explained for the hundredth time to Hester.

"I'm hungry; let's eat something," was Hester's answer.

"We couldn't do that," said Stephen. "We'd make him lose face. He'd be sure to find out from the servants."

Agent's Revenge

But at nine, he rang for Kin. "Get dinner."

"There is nothing prepared," answered Kin, unconcealed contempt in his manner.

Now, in a flash, Stephen knew that the agent had never intended to come for them, that this was retaliation for what had taken place that afternoon.

Well, tomorrow the agent should know that he was not so stupid. He would handle the matter with the approved indirectness of this country's custom.

Throughout the next day Stephen waited patiently, believing that Liu would come to make his apologies, thus completing the proprieties.

"I have come," said Liu, "the first moment that I have been able. At the house of the feast last evening, my body put forth such fire that I was unable to come. Now if the honorable one will accept my humble hospitality, we will begin feasting."

"It is with great concern that I learn of the sickness of the honorable one," answered Stephen, tipping back in his swivel chair, conveying a subtle insult by his sprawling attitude.

"Which is not escaping Liu," he said to himself. And aloud, "I could not think of asking a sick man to endure the hardship of long feasting."

Urged to Feast

"Ai," responded Liu, with a deep sigh. "My miserable self is not to be considered."

Stephen felt his anger rising. He'd puncture the man's self-complacency.

"Could the injury by any chance be in the honorable one's leg?" Eyeing Liu closely, he noticed a lessening of his composure.

"He knows that I have seen through him," thought Stephen, with no little satisfaction. "Once he told me himself of Yaun Shih Kai's excuse of a lame leg when the Prince Regent, who had forced him into retirement, summoned him to the palace to help put down the revolution. Yuan wished the prince to know he was strong enough to give the veiled insult."

Now Liu began sincerely to urge Stephen to feast with him. "I could not cause the great Liu trouble," the white man insisted.

The agent's disdainful pride fell away. "Come, Prior Born," he begged, "or I lose such face that I must give up the business."

Failing to move Stephen by these entreaties, he went away. The next day emissaries came as go-betweens in the matter.

After three days it was arranged. Stephen would go once with Liu to the restaurant, so that he might get back his face. But never after that.

Afterward the proprieties were kept. Liu occasionally invited the Chases to a feast, and Stephen found some reason which made it impossible for them to go.

The snow fell as it had not fallen for years in Manchuria—particles that bit like steel whirled through the air with high-powered velocity.

All night he held her in his arms, waking at her every movement, his senses afire as he adjusted his body to her comfort.

Sometimes his lips caressed the thick masses of her hair. He had not loved her when he married her, but that made no difference to Hester now. Only this ecstasy mattered.

She lay in his arms, relaxed, intensifying her helplessness so that she might know to the uttermost the strength of his vigorous body.

Opening the door softly before he knocked in the morning, Kin would find them clasped in each other's arms. He was well pleased.

Now had his moment come. The missie would pay little attention. The mouths of his family would be well filled for a time.

So the months slipped by, and Hester's time of travail was not far away. In his heart Stephen felt that she should have more expert care than the Danish doctor, who had been here many years, could give her.

But when he thought of parting from her, he felt maimed and helpless, and the vision of Hester traveling alone out into the world, the world that now seemed abnormal to him in its activities, its dangers, disturbed him.

"Hester, do you feel that you should go?"

"Oh, no, Stephen. No, I couldn't, I couldn't go alone." She broke into frightened sobbing.

"There, there," he hushed her. "I couldn't bear to have you go, but I thought maybe you'd have better care."

In the morning they confessed they had been foolish. Nothing need take Hester away. The Danish doctor was good, and he was very kind.

Once again Hester began to feel that she was in sanctuary, in the little house shut off from the world by the rumble of the long carts.

A Modern Proverb

By Rev. Arthur Lee Kinsolving

This seed of wisdom is embedded in T. S. Elliot's dramatic poem, "The Rock." Let us try a quiet spring planting of it in our minds, and watch to see the proportions it can grow to.

For nine-tenths of the times, when we human beings take short-sighted attitudes, and succumb to stupid, selfish courses of action, it is that we are taking too much thought for the immediate harvest, and forgetting the proper sowing.

During the post-war years, we Americans have been infected with an epidemic of eagerness to have a good time. Restless and uncontent, we've been avidly exploring every curious pleasure that bids fair to amuse us and to bring glamorous sensations. And just because we've been so pleasure bent, we have more often missed content and true joyousness of spirit.

For the infinitely elusive and subtle secret of abiding joy is that those who chase pleasure eminently miss it. Joy is sweetly distilled in the most unexpected moments to those who are patiently sowing healthy crops of self-forgetfulness, restraint and kindliness toward others. But when driven by this mad hunger for sensation we abandon principles of duty and honor, in the desire for an immediate pleasure harvest, we eminently fail.

By the same token, an ugly change threatens to take place in this people.

From being steady, responsible, patriotic co-operators, many of us are being disfigured by an itch to gulp a harvest of unworked for wealth, regardless of what disastrous effects it may ultimately have on the country.

Selfishly shortsighted it is, bred of taking thought for the immediate harvest, instead of the proper sowing.

Here is a wise principle that might well have emanated from the pen of a Solomon or a Benjamin Franklin. But to keep it we need trust in God, assurance that there is a moral order, confidence that in the long last justice will be done, and that whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. And we need to understand the meaning of the phrase—"in God's good time."

For those who are in too great a hurry for God, and insist on plucking off all the harvests they want immediately, invariably bring on bad times, not alone for themselves, but for everybody.

So, let us ponder this proverb: "Take no thought of the harvest, but only of the proper sowing."

ADVICE on LOVE by BEATRICE FAIRFAX and NELL BRINKLEY

Love's "Quality of Mercy Is Not Strained"

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THE CENTRAL figure in the "Great American Tragedy" has paid the penalty, and parents all over these United States ask themselves the question: What if it were my boy?

The clean-cut, good-looking young American looked so incapable of the deed of which he was declared guilty that his expiation of the crime in the electric chair seemed gruesome.

He said goodbye to his father without a break in his voice: "Goodbye, Dad," that was all, and the old man said, "Goodbye, son."

In his last hours on earth, this 22-year-old boy is reported to have written a message to the girl he wanted to marry; and to have broken down and sobbed over it. The girl, for love of whom he put the other girl—the one who was about to bear his child—out of the way, sent him no message. The dead girl was a childhood sweetheart, uncultured, simple, loving him with a love that doesn't stop to reckon.

The girl he wanted to marry was a music teacher, said to be better educated, several rounds above him in the social ladder. She wasn't pretty, unless her photographs have done her an injustice, but there was a glimpse of wider orbits, of greater social success about this girl, and the young man fell for these things.

ALONE IN TRAGEDY

But during all the months this boy was in jail, during the terrific ordeal of his trial, during the revealing of his life and the grueiling of lawyers for the state, never once did this girl write him a word.

Day after day, according to the story that leaked out from the jail, he would ask in a strained voice, his face white and eager, if there was any mail. He would shuffle over the letters from his family, and the letters that always come to men under sentence of death, looking for one from Margaret, the girl for love of whom he did this terrible deed—but she never wrote him a line.

The day before his execution, when he packed up his pitiful effects, accumulated in jail and in the death-cell, the most precious of these things was a Bible which, it is alleged, this girl had sent him. There was, however, no confirmation of this. And never a line or a word did she write.

NO MESSAGE

Why? Was she afraid of more notoriety; of being more conspicuously woven in the web of motives than the testimony of the trial had already brought out? Or had she never considered that "The quality of mercy is not strained—"

While the boy, with a guard on either side of him, was walking those last steps to the chair, the girl was described in the papers as surrounded by her family, determined at all hazards to keep away from friends who wanted to be kind and reporters who offered to send an 11th-hour message to the boy.

But it was not to be. The young music teacher who had plighted her troth to the boy about to pay the extreme penalty had no message of love or encouragement for him.

THE BEST-LOVED

What were the thoughts of that 22-year-old boy as he sat in the chair and waited to have his arms pinioned?

Did he think of the girl he had sent to her death, the girl who had loved him without counting the cost, or the girl he had hoped to marry, and for the fulfillment of that vain wish he had done this unspeakable deed?

Life goes on. We do not have to read more deeply than the daily papers to realize how often it is the girl who loves unstintingly who pays the bill, while the one who does not care to have her name mixed up in tragedies is so often the best loved.

HOW CAN HE OBTAIN AN INTRODUCTION

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have seen her on the street almost every day for two years. For the last year I've always lifted my hat when we meet, but I've never had the courage to speak to her. She's a very well-bred girl, and I'm sure wouldn't stand for any "picked up" business.

The only person I know who is acquainted with her is a man whom I particularly dislike. Must I know this girl through his kindness? The idea is repulsive to me.

HONEST JOHN.

I'm afraid you'll have to agree with a certain philosopher when he said, "Evil, be thou my good," and cultivate the acquaintance of this man to the extent of securing an introduction to the young lady.

Which Type of Girl Appeals to You?

"Pint-Size" or "Commanding"

Among the "I-wish-I-were-what-I-am-nots" that beset the girls and seem to make their days a striving and their nights cold-creamy and curl-papery, stands out the question of size and length! In dressing-rooms, around tea-tables and places where women grow confidential I hear this over and over:

Tall-Girl: "If you were as tall as I am you'd have something to worry about. Every LITTLE man seems to just love my company."

Pint-Size: "Long legs! You don't know when you're lucky. Nobody takes me seriously. Shorties have no grace. Oh yes, I've heard that one about 'small packages.' But nothing looks stunning on me."

But when it comes to a matter of serious loving, there are an army of men who'd vote for each of you. One man likes his girl cuddly. You can't cuddle the long-legged, commanding girl. Another man will all his life admire, and choose for his own the tall girl, square-shouldered, self-reliant. The "tiny woman" is just a cute little thing to HIM.

Jim likes the cosey, wee thing that leans on him and bosses him through and by way of his heart, at one and the same time.

ADELE GARRISON'S LOVE SERIAL

Given in Marriage

MR. SPENCER TO QUESTION CHINESE

CHAPTER 354

I DID NOT have to wait the fraction of an instant for the response from Junior and Roderick to my verdict as to their punishment.

I told them that I thought I would remit all punishment for this particular offense, and consider it as balanced against one or two other occasions when they had thought, and rightly, that I had punished them unjustly upon Mother Graham's "say-so."

They had not named their grandmother, but I had known whom Junior had meant in his hesitating references. The two small boys rushed at me with such joyous enthusiasm that I almost lost my balance.

"Oh, Mums!" "Oh, Auntie Madge!" The vociferous young voices sounded simultaneously. "Do you really mean it?"

I assured them that I meant every word I had said, and again their voices rose as one.

"Oh, boy! What a break!"

"Do you know what we were afraid of, Mums?" Junior confided a second or two later, when their exhuberance had somewhat spent itself.

"No, dear; what?"

DAY OF "BIG DOINGS"

"That the punishment would be having to stay in our rooms today, and not being out where things were doing. Gee! I'll bet this is going to be some day!"

Lillian, coming swiftly in without knocking, an action that I knew meant something important was afoot, grasped an arm of each kindly but firmly and rushed them out of the room.

"If you've had all the breakfast you want," she directed, "beat it out into the orchard and play there. But don't go outside the fence. If you do, I won't let you in on the ground floor of all the doings. And don't come back up here. Shoo, now! And don't make any noise."

They scampered downstairs, obeying her injunctions as well as small boys reasonably could, and she turned back to me.

"Get into that bed and cover up," she directed me in a low voice, when she had closed the door. "There are 'signs and portents' abroad that your father is going to need you before long, and I wouldn't want to be around when he discovers that the time he intended for your rest had been taken up by the youngsters. I'll let you know when he's in the offing."

She opened the door noiselessly and went out while, such is the perversity of human nature, I, who had been certain that I could not sleep, now felt so drowsy at her edict not to sleep, that in less than two minutes after she closed the door, I was in dreamland.

I wakened, it seemed about thirty seconds later, to the pressure of her hand upon my shoulder.

"If Paddy's pig had anything on you for contrariness!" she said, laughing, when I finally opened my eyes.

"You mean the one that he told to go to Cork in order that the obstinate swine should take the opposite road?" I countered, smiling lazily up at her.

"That's the very animile," she rejoined. "Tell you to take a nap, and you can't sleep a wink. Give you a gentle admonition not to go to sleep, as your nap may be summarily interrupted, and you proceed to pound your ear into pulp. But you're lucky! Your father didn't ask for you as soon as I feared. You've had a full hour's sleep."

Monogram Your Linens

ALPHABET PATTERN 854

DO YOU want your linens to be distinctive?

If you do, embroider them with your initials or monogram—this will give them individuality.

And when the letters are as decorative as this alphabet, it simply means you're adding more beauty to them. You can do them in cutwork, satin stitch or a weaving stitch in one or two colors—the second color can add a shaded effect. There are three size alphabets so you can have as much variety as you please. Use single initials, initials in a row or a monogram of different sized letters, effectively grouped.

Pattern 854 comes to you with a transfer pattern of one complete 2-inch alphabet, two 1½-inch alphabets and two ¾-inch ones; detailed directions for embroidering them in different ways; illustrations of all stitches used; suggestions for arranging letters and correct placing on various linens.

Hints FOR THE PERFECT Week-End

By ANNICE BRINK
Fashion Editor

WEEK-ENDING starts in with a vengeance just about this time.

There is an irresistible urge to cut and run to a favorite wave-washed shore, or a country spot where apple blossoms and lilacs make one fairly dizzy with delight . . . and the clothes problem is the only fly in the ointment.

To be clever at short-cuts, to double up at every possible point, and to take things that require a minimum of your time and maid service in looking spandy and fresh . . . these only will make the following Monday a red-letter, instead of a blue day.

First, we suggest the shirtwaist frock in one of the thicker celanese or the smoothie acetate fabrics. They know not what it means to wrinkle, they're inexpensive and there are no more glorious colors than those found in synthetic silks. As a spectator, you will be perfectly gotten up.

A dark corduroy coat, if the frock is light, or light if it is dark, will take care of the trip in and out of town. The same coat will be your evening wrap.

• • •

Swimming will undoubtedly be on the program, and you have probably found out that no matter how scant the suit, the beach gadget group is the bulkiest of the lot. Sandals and towelling robes are awkward and heavy. An acetate suite will fold into practically nothing, and if you must have something on your feet, why not some medieval Venetian scuffs with floppy pointed toes, made of chamois soft and light as gloves?

If you take sun glasses, a beach hat may be omitted. And if you need a bit of warmth after you come out of the water, fine jersey is light, packable, and to be had in anything from divided skirts and contrasting blouses, to slacks and Breton shirts.

A divided skirt outfit in jersey or cotton can be useful, for activity, relaxation, bicycling, hiking, or a hectic time on the tennis court or at the afternoon bridge table.

• • •

A print silk crepe evening gown will need no ministrations from an iron if it is rolled over a cardboard cylinder the width of the frock's shoulders.

Save your starchy cottons for the country club at home. Net and chiffon may also be rolled, as suggested for the print crepe.

• • •

We are ardent members of the beach gadget gang, but only at a regular camping ground, or when baggage is a minor consideration. And with a longing look—you'd better do the same, too—leave behind the huge sea-horse decorated towels, the penguin beach bag, the pioneer-woman beach dress with balloon-wide skirt and fitted jacket and the sea shell jewelry and the cork bracelets and chokers almost as large as fishnet floaters.

Of Cotton Inspiration

EFFECTIVE, SLIM LINES

By MARIAN MARTIN

PATTERN 9379

Its effective and slimming lines are very easy to achieve—just dedicate to them a few hours of pleasant sewing. The lines of the bodice gave a bolero effect—very flattering to a larger figure.

The sleeves are soft and feminine (although you can omit sleeves entirely, if you like). Note that they are cut in one with the bodice.

Pattern 9379 may be ordered only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 36 requires 3½ yards 36 inch fabric.

SHORT CUTS TO FINE LAUNDERING

Apply Them to Summer Cottons

By MARTHA LEE

LAUNDERING is as much the problem of the housewife as food, and these first warm days she thinks of the cotton and linen dresses in which the family lives all summer.

This year there are all sorts of interesting and good-looking materials for us to choose from.

In cottons there are seersuckers, piques, broadcloth, organdy, voile, etc. And linens range from sheer handerchief type to rough and bumpy peasant weaves.

With all these dresses there is just no question but what they will be refreshed by washing, and with a little thought and care they will look surprisingly new, even at the end of the summer.

In color, these clothes run the gauntlet from white to vivid shades, and many are trimmed with bright buttons or buckles.

The safe procedure is to always test a new colored garment for color fastness before washing it, testing not only the material of the garment itself, but also any colored trimmings.

Buttons and buckles should be removed unless one is positive they are washable. This year this is made easy for us by the fact that the buttons are tied on with a little strip of the dress material, and need only to be untied.

All types of white cotton and linen garments may be washed just as one would white sheets and pillowcases—that is, first soak in lukewarm granulated suds, wash in fresh hot suds, thoroughly rinse and dry in the sun.

Dresses and shorts much bedraggled as a result of a strenuous tennis match, or a picnic supper, come from the tub fresh and clean after this treatment.

Colored garments should be washed in lukewarm or cool granulated suds, never soaking them unless one is positive the colors are fast.

It will be found that the rich, active granulated suds remove soil and grease surprisingly quickly and easily, preserving the original attractiveness of the material.

Thoroughly rinse garments in lukewarm water to remove all traces of soap. Then, especially if the colors are unfast, it is helpful to roll garments in a dry Turkish towel. This removes the excess moisture, so that garments tend to dry more quickly, and streaking is less likely to occur.

The ironing of these cotton and linen garments will depend upon the material. Rough and crepey fabrics usually look best if ironed when dry, or almost dry. An example of this is seersucker.

The smooth-surface fabrics, however, usually look best if ironed slightly damp.

In general, white or light colored fabrics may be ironed on the right side, but dark colored fabrics, such as black, or navy blue, should be ironed on the wrong side, as, if ironed on the right side shiny streaks tend to develop, especially on seams and double thickness.

BRIDGE

THE SLAM ZONE

By MRS. CULBERTSON

When two partners hold more than seven honor-tricks between them, they should usually begin to think about Slam possibilities.

There are only eight or eight and one-half honor-tricks in all held by the four players, and if a player can be sure his side holds seven or more of them he knows he will probably lose only one trick to the opponents' honors.

For Slam bidding it is not enough to know how many tricks you will probably lose, however; you must be confident of winning the necessary 12 or 13 tricks.

When there is a trump suit, or when either partner holds a long suit, the additional tricks needed can be made up with low cards.

When neither partner has a long and strong suit, the Slam should be approached more cautiously.

Usually, when one partner opens with a notrump bid and the other partner has balanced distribution, with no long suit and no singleton, he should make a weaker bid than the number of honor-tricks he holds seems to warrant.

Neither side vulnerable.

The bidding:

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| Pass | Pass | 2NT (1) | Pass |
| 4NT (2) | Pass | Pass (3) | Pass |

(1) The minimum two-notrump bid. North has five-plus honor-tricks and nine honor-cards to give the necessary "body" to his hand. One diamond would have been a slightly better opening bid, however.

An opening two-notrump bid asks partner to raise if he has one-half honor-trick (two Queens, for example). North is not particularly anxious to play at game in notrump if his partner has only two Queens.

(2) South knows his partner has more than five honor-tricks, and he himself has more than two honor-tricks, making a total for the combined hands of at least seven and one-half.

But South also knows that North has 4-3-3-3 distribution, so that no long suit is available. So South contents himself with raising to four notrump.

This is not a conventional bid, being a direct raise of a notrump bid; but it is a Slam try, since it is one more trick than necessary for game.

If North has values in excess of an opening two-notrump bid, he should go on to a Slam.

(3) Having a minimum, North passes without giving the matter a second thought.

As it happens, six-odd were made in the play, but by a combination of fortunate circumstances.

East opened the nine of clubs, assuring North of four tricks in that suit. North now finessed through East for the Queen of hearts, and won the finesse, thus taking four tricks in hearts.

He later attempted to win all 13 of the tricks by leading the Queen of diamonds from dummy and finessing for the King; but East won this trick. It was the only trick North lost.

The Slam, however, could not have been made without a successful heart finesse. No blame can be attached to a pair which does not bid a Slam when it depends entirely upon a successful finesse.

QUINS NEAR FIRST BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY

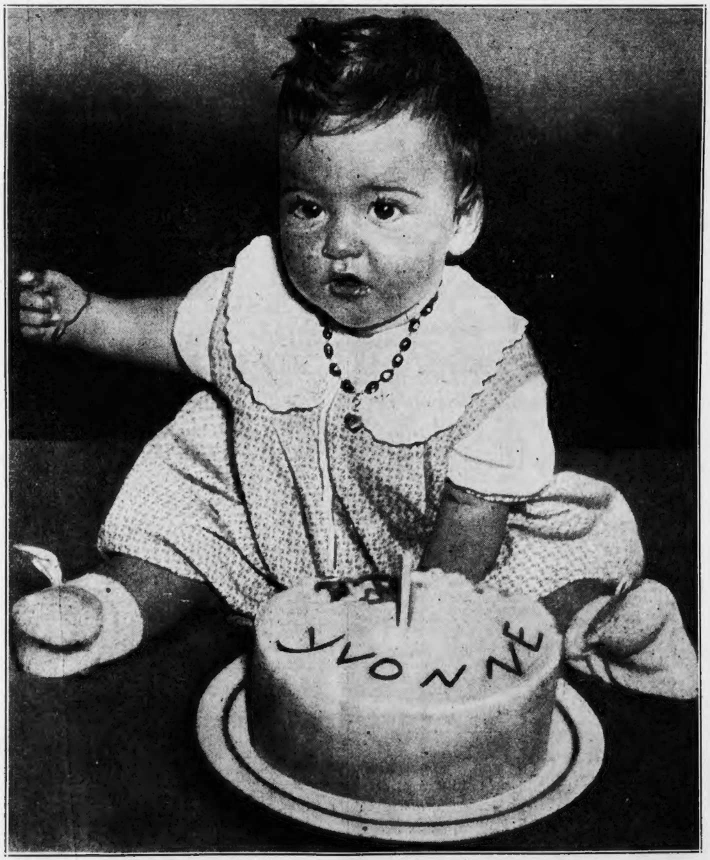
PLANNING FOR NO. 1 BIRTHDAY PARTY—The home town of the Dionne quins is sprucing up for the big day—next Tuesday—the first anniversary of the birth of the five little girls to Mrs. Ernest Dionne. Callander will celebrate. Store fronts are getting new coats of paint. National colors—buntings and flowers are being placed to make the town look gay for the big birthday party. Marie-Emelie-Cecile-Annette and Yvonne will not know much about the big celebration in the town—but they will see gay cakes—each having just one candle on it—They will see new toys, new clothes—Everything will be new. May 28 of 1934 will long be remembered in the history of Callander. The Canadian government will have an official delegation at the little quins' hospital for the celebration. Following the natal day program the town of Callander will arrange for a huge summer visitation of those from many parts of Canada and the United States who will come with a hope of glancing at the youngsters. What plans will be made for tourists is not known at the present—but Callander will plan for their entertainment—whether tourists are allowed to see the children or not.

GAZE AT A THINKER—What a refreshing pause. Just looks as if Cecile got enough cake—quickly. Surely she looks as if some of her cake craving has subsided. As the photographer made this interesting pose, Cecile paused a moment to assume this thoughtful attitude. Perhaps she has suddenly realized that one cannot have one's cake and eat it. But there will be more cake. Tuesday is the day.



HOLD THAT PUNCH—Just looks as if Yvonne didn't care much about that NEA Service photographer getting too close when she was right in there with her own big cake. You, by a study of this remarkable picture, will note that this one-fifth of the quins scorns the niceties of etiquette. That left hand is scooping cake. Yes, sir—no slow methods such as cake knives for stern Yvonne. We almost failed to see some cake in that clenched right fist. It's there. Looks to us as if Yvonne will demand bigger and better birthday cakes as the days go on. Yvonne surely shows a lot of life in this beautiful photograph. Look out, you other four babies. Look for the marvelous pictures of the quins in the Boston American on Monday and Tuesday. They are wonderful.

(World copyright, 1935, NEA Service, Inc.)

CHEER UP, EMELIE—They are planning a big birthday party for you on Tuesday. Why be so serious about it all. Come up close to that cake. What eyes Emelie has! She surely is using them as this photograph was made up there at the Callander home of the quins. You will note, however, that the back rim of this cake has been worked on. Emelie is no doubt through eating and has time for peering.

BILL GRIMES on Sox Should Reduce Pitching Corps

IN ALL PROBABILITY, Business Manager Eddie Collins and Manager Cronin are bending every effort to rectify the current lob-sided Red Sox roster, upon which are enrolled six outfielders but only one extra infielder, who, at the moment, is the ailing Max Bishop.

BILL GRIMES

But, at any moment, Joe Cronin, Bill Werber or Babe Dahlgren is liable to pull up lame. If such a condition comes to pass, it will be a tragedy, for it will give the Red Sox all the outward appearance of a Class B outfit.

Like all major league clubs, the Red Sox were obliged to reduce their roster to 23 men by May 15, which they did. But for a club with pennant aspirations, they are carrying too much dead wood.

First off, there's the pitching corps. Cronin could do some real two-fisted culling in this department without lessening the team's chances of finishing in the money.

Any team with ten pitchers on its pay roll—and six of its 16 victories have been chalked up behind ONE hurler—is not getting a proper return for its investment from the other nine.

Ferrell, Ostermueller and Welch

WESLEY FERRELL is the only reliable pitcher Cronin has had at his disposal this season. Wes' record is six wins against two defeats.

Fritz Ostermueller with a pitching average of .500 is coming along rapidly, since he has had the upper hand on his control and is taking some of the burden off of Ferrell's shoulders, while Johnny Welch's official record is three wins and two losses.

Ferrell, Ostermueller and Welch have accounted for 11 of the 16 Red Sox victories.

Two of the other five wins are credited to Robert Moses Grove, leaving the other three successful conquests to be dispersed among the other six members of the pitching corps.

The above official figures indicate that more than one half of the Red Sox pitchers are not delivering. No team can possibly hope to carry such a load and go any place in a major league. It just can't be done.

• • •

BASEBALL MANAGERS are all living in the hope that some veteran will discover a Fountain of Youth and come up with a winning brand of pitching.

But, instead of enjoying such a miracle, the managers are greying rapidly and are becoming victims of their unstrung nerves.

Instead of mowing down opponents as they did of yore, the veterans usually get their "ears pinned back" and blow too many games to be classified among the club's assets.

If the Red Sox pitching staff was composed of three veterans and seven youngsters, instead of seven veterans and three youngsters, Cronin's future would be far more bright.

Need More Than Bing as Garden Spare

There is far too much talk about this or that rookie being one or two years away.

Promising young players are sent out to be schooled under minor league managers who have more interest in their own success than in the development of the player on loan, and, therefore, never hesitate to risk the future of his charges, in order to benefit his own cause.

The underlying trouble is that much of the material brought to the major leagues hasn't a chance in a thousand of making the grade.

Rookies are frequently ruined by managers who insist upon them adopting a new style of hitting.

Made hitters have seldom registered to any great extent in major league ball, while many with the most unorthodox form have been topnotchers.

• • •

ALONG WITH the headaches he's getting from his pitchers, Joe Cronin has a problem on his hands with his outfield. Roy Johnson and Mel Almada are fixtures, and Carl Reynolds is apparently regaining his long lost batting eye.

Bing Miller is listed as an outfielder, which may be stretching a point from the defensive angle, but has been used solely in the role of pinch hitter. And, Bing has delivered in great style.

As Miller is not sufficiently agile to cavort around the outfield with the speed of the present day outer gardeners, Cronin cannot run the risk of letting out Lem Solters and Dusty Cooke.

Opinions to the contrary notwithstanding, Solters is a better hitter than he has shown himself to be this season.

He attempted to adopt the flat swing at Sarasota and in all probability he is in the same predicament as the golfer who experiments with a new form.

His swing is now about half old form and half new. And, naturally, he has lost his timing completely.

• • •

Sox Working on Couple of Trades

Despite the fact that he was "up four for no" on Thursday, Reynolds has connected with as many hits since last Tuesday as he had made all season.

• • •

SINCE LAST MONDAY, Reynolds has bettered his batting average almost 100 points, 92 to be exact. He was hitting—or rather missing—for .143 last Monday night but today he has an average of .235.

He came up with five "blows" during the last two Cleveland games and but for the fleet footedness of Pete Fox would have added two triples to his record during the opening game with the Tigers.

Yesterday, Reynolds starred at the bat and also in the field. He nicked General Crowder for a single and a two-bagger on three trips to the plate and then thumped another two-bagger off Fred Marberry's Flo Ziegfeld delivery.

Although the front office is keeping everything very much sub-rosa, the Red Sox are working on a couple of trades, which will clear away some of the dead wood, and produce some up to date tools for Joe Cronin to use in the construction of a championship contender.

14,000 See Danno WIN

TORRID BOUT AT GARDEN

By Jack Conway

There were cheers by 14,000 persons for Gus Sonnenberg as he was assisted from the ring at the Garden following his defeat by youthful Dan O'Mahoney, Irish champion, in two straight falls.

Danno had won the first fall in 27m. 17s. and the second in 1m. 38s. A body press gave him the toss on each occasion.

The cheers were accorded the former champion because of his courage. He had gone down fighting.

He had come back into the ring after losing the first fall when he was in poor condition. He was willing to face the music.

There was a crowd around the ring as Sonnenberg was assisted to his dressing room. It was a morbid gathering that wished to see how badly the former champion had been beaten by wrestling's new sensation.

The crowd cheered Gus. Even Danno's supporters joined in the tribute to the Dynamiter. He is still a national figure in wrestling, and he gave his all against O'Mahoney. This was not enough.

FAST PACE

Sonnenberg gained two distinctions. He made O'Mahoney travel 27m. 17s. to gain the first fall. This is the longest any person has ever gone with Danno.

Then O'Mahoney drove Gus through the ropes with the "Irish Whip" Sonnenberg later missed with a wild tackle, and crashed to the floor of the Garden. It was three minutes before he returned to the ring.

Danno dropped under a tackle, let Gus hit his feet and then lifted him to the top ring rope. Sonnenberg bounced on the rope, then crashed to the canvas. He landed on his back and was pinned by a top body press in 27m. 17s.

THE PRELIMS

The fall from the ring had taken the fire out of Sonnenberg and it was necessary to carry him to his dressing room. Gus was allowed extra time, but when he returned to the ring he was in almost a helpless condition.

Referee Sam Smith permitted the match to be resumed against the protests of some of the fans. Sonnenberg was in poor condition and was quickly downed by a body press in 1m. 38s.

Henri DeGlane won from Gino Garibaldi in the semifinal in 21m. 41s. with a side arm chancery and body press.

Braves Send Bobby Brown To Syracuse

Bobby Brown of Hull, who three years ago loomed as the most promising young twirler in the National League, was shipped to the Syracuse Club of the International League on option it was announced early today by the Boston Braves.

Brown was hailed as the boy wonder of the National League when he chalked up 14 victories for the Braves in 1932 after stepping off the Nantasket sandlots, but the next season Brown bobbed up with a sore arm and it has never responded to treatment.

In fact, in 1933 Brown was expected to twirl the Tribe to a pennant, but he flopped completely. His efforts at a comback have been unsuccessful. Last year he won one game and lost three and this season he has been dusted off time and again.

The fall of the Hull youngster can be traced to this sore wing and the Tribe is still hopeful that Bobby's arm will return to shape and he will make the grade back.

Kay Wins Women's Net Title

Miss Kay Winthrop of Hamilton and Boston won the women's state tennis title this morning when she defeated Miss Marjorie Sachs of Cambridge, 8—6 and 6—2, at The Country Club, Brookline. The defending titlist came from behind in the first set, then went on to win.

Every point throughout the match was closely fought but Miss Winthrop's steadiness and accuracy offset the backhand speed of the Cambridge entrant.

RALLIES After Faulter TO WIN

RETAINS CROWN WON LAST YEAR

St. Anne's-on-the-Sea, Eng., May 25 (AP) — Standing off a great closing challenge by his British rival, William Lawson Little, Jr., of San Francisco, today captured the British amateur golf championship, one up, in the 36-hole final match from Dr. William Tweddell.

The 24-year-old Californian, who won the title on his first bid for it last year at Prestwick, where he overwhelmed Jim Wallace 14 and 13, led the 38-year-old British medico three up at the halfway mark and then was seized with a bad attack of the jitters while his rival shot steady golf and his advantage was wiped out on the 30th hole.

Little regained his poise sufficiently to win two of the next three holes and marched to the 35th dormie two.

Here the Briton lopped a hole off his deficit as he almost holed out spectacularly from a trap for a birdie three but won with a four as Little rapped an iron second into a swarm of spectators in the rough and produced a five.

The marshals had to hold up the last hole of the match ten minutes in order to restore order among the 10,000 wild, cheering spectators encouraging Dr. Tweddell in the hopes of restoring the championship to England.

Tweddell drove 250 yards down the middle of the 36th fairway and Little sliced his tee shot into a crowd 100 yards short of the green on barren turf.

The crowd drew tense as Little prepared to fire his approach over a yawning trap. He made a beautifully lobbed shot that stopped 25 feet short of the hole—three feet beyond Tweddell's second shot.

The recovery put new life in the champion and he putted up stone-dead for a certain four. Tweddell's putt slid past the can inches wide and the medico rushed over to Little and extended congratulations.

FIRST HOLE, 215 YARDS, PAR THREE

They both missed the green with their drives, Tweddell's falling 20 yards short and Little's landing beyond the putting carpet on a barren patch of turf. Tweddell chipped up 15 feet past the cup and missed his first putt. Little lobbed a beauty over a bunker and the ball stopped on the lip of the cup, Tweddell conceding the hole.

SECOND HOLE, 424 YARDS, PAR FOUR

Little's drive outdistanced Tweddell's by ten yards as they were both down the middle of the fairway, fore caddies marking the balls with American and British flags. Tweddell's wood second drifted far to the right of the green but Little punched his to within 12 feet of the cup. Tweddell pitched inside of Little's ball and they narrowly missed their first putts.

THIRD HOLE, 461 YARDS, PAR FOUR

They cautiously steered their drives away from the dreaded railroad tracks paralleling the fairway. Little's iron second caught a bunker to the right of the green and Tweddell's was short. The 1927 champion dubbed his third still short of the green while Little pitched ten feet from the cup. Tweddell's 40-foot chip hit the cup and bounced out as Little required two putts and the hole was halved.

FOURTH HOLE, 425 YARDS, PAR FOUR

The defending champion outdrove his rival by twenty yards. The wind caught Tweddell's iron second into the rough to the left of the green while Little fired a magnificent iron to within eight feet of the flag as the crowd cheered wildly. Tweddell emerged from the rough ten feet past the cup and again his first putt hit the cup and bounced out, Little getting down easily in two putts for a par four to become three up.

FIFTH HOLE, 186 YARDS, PAR THREE

Their tee shots held the handkerchief green 40 feet short of the pin which was on the back edge. Tweddell ran his approach putt, with a wooden putter, ten feet past the cup and Little stuck his a foot from the can but the hole was halved in one over-par 4s as Tweddell missed his return and Little's ball dropped and jumped out. The defending champion stared daggers at the ball.

SIXTH HOLE, 422 YARDS, PAR FOUR

BEST BET—FOREIGN LADY

Rockingham Park, May 25—Foreign Lady, Nat Ray's swift-running filly, stand head nad shoulders over an indifferent field of non-winners this year in the mile and one-sixteenth of the eighth race here tomorrow afternoon.

The Polymelian filly coming off a corking second to Tartan Betsy, is nicely weighted under a feather of 95 pounds. She apparently needs only intelligent handling in order to grace the winner's circle.

| 2 | Bobby Buxton | 107 | Robertson | 8-1 | Speedy; may hang on. |
| 13 | Weedidit | x98 | Wimmer | 8-1 | Rates some chance. |
| 4 | Coming Back | 108 | Stout | 15-1 | Last helped. |
| 3 | Dark Devil | x108 | Deering | 20-1 | Would surprise. |
| 8 | Frisco | x108 | Johnson | 20-1 | Not in form. |
| 9 | Solitary | x98 | Watson | 20-1 | Surely not here. |

PROSECUTOR is coming off a bang-up second to Vee Eight. The Gallagher colorbearer has only to duplicate that effort in order to be the first to catch the judge's eyes. DE VALERA, the main danger, displaying marked improvement last time to finish fourth to par value. GENERAL LeJEUNE is favored by one of the outside post-positions. The General Thatcher colt is capable of upsetting the dope.

SECOND RACE—LOVE LOST, ON OUR WAY, NERVY NELLA

SECOND RACE—Maiden three-year-olds and up. Claiming, $800, 5½ furlongs:

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| 3 | Love Lost | 102 | Fisher | 5-2 | May be right one. |
| 4 | On Our Way | 107 | Seabo | 2-1 | Nose out last trip. |
| 2 | Nervy Nella | x97 | Wagner | 4-1 | Fast morning trials. |
| 7 | The Bouncer | x112 | Johnson | 6-1 | Improved last time. |
| 10 | Dolentia | x97 | Faust | 13-1 | In Smart hands. |
| 1 | Chattress | 112 | Nertey | 15-1 | May be a good thing. |
| 9 | Red Hans | 117 | Hughes | 15-1 | Works Fairly well. |
| 6 | Joe Mac | 107 | Robertson | 20-1 | Improvement needed. |
| 9 | Tippo Tip | x102 | Neulsey | 20-1 | Not for mine. |
| 5 | Bottle | x112 | Hayward | 20-1 | Dime-a-dozen. |

LOVE LOST, a front-running filly from the J. H. Whitney barn, figures to hang on long enough to outlast ON OUR WAY for the lion's share of the spoils. The latter was nosed out by Par Value only a few days back. NERVY NELLA, a brisk morning worker, for the remainder.

THIRD RACE—KNOWTOW, BROMIDE. QUEEN HELEN

THIRD RACE—Maiden three-year-olds and up, claiming, $800, 5½ furlongs:

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| 6 | Bromide | 107 | Robertson | 3-1 | Figures close up. |
| 8 | Queen Helen | 108 | Phillips | 4-1 | May upset the dope. |
| 3 | Maidwell | x102 | Critchfield | 8-1 | Good speed last trip. |
| 5 | Ottoway | 107 | Wall | 8-1 | Chance on best form. |
| 4 | Hydras | 107 | Fallon | 12-1 | Fast morning worker. |
| 10 | Joe Jay | 107 | Seabo | 12-1 | Last helped. |
| 2 | Red Label | 102 | Stout | 20-1 | Stranger. |
| 8 | Yankee Prince | 107 | Smith | 20-1 | Raced Saturday. |
| 1 | Jean Lee | 107 | Longden | 20-1 | Hasn't shown enough. |

Not much to choose between KOWTOW and BROMIDE in this affair. They finished heads apart only a fe wdays back. KOKWTOW is in receipt of a five-pound shift in weights and it is for that reason that I'm stringing along with the Martin colorbearer. That effort was BROMIDE'S first in several weeks and he may have been a dead short horse. QUEEN HELEN displayed marked improvement last time. She merits serious consideration.

FOURTH RACE—DELIBERATE, TORITA, TWO BOB

FOURTH RACE—Nashua Claiming Purse, two-year-olds, five furlongs:

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| 4 | Deliberate | 110 | Seabo | 8-5 | Looks like a standout. |
| 2 | Torita | x97 | Wagner | 5-1 | Saved for this. |
| 7 | Two Bob | 110 | Robertson | 3-1 | Worked half in :47. |
| 6 | Lady Carrot | 102 | Stout | 8-1 | Fighting chance. |
| 3 | Wise King | 101 | Stout | 8-1 | Does not figure. |
| 5 | Square Play | 109 | Knapp | 15-1 | May beat this rating. |
| 1 | Madum Zero | 106 | Finnerty | 20-1 | Devoid of speed. |

DELIBERATE was never out of a pull in drubbing a field similar to this on opening day. The Bubbling Over colt, while none too stouthearted, shapes up as a standout off that effort. TORITA was unable to match strides with the top one on opening day, but the Greentree Juvenile came right back to crack a track record only a few days later. He is also favored by a 16-pound shift in weights. TWO BOB, a fast-stepping C. V. Whitney juvenile, aired four furlongs in .47 for a final. He looms a stout possibility

FIFTH RACE—WESTYS JUNIOR, FLASHING THRU, CHIRAC.

FIFTH RACE—Four-year-olds and up, claiming., $1000, five furlongs:

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| 6 | Westy's Junior | 115 | Robertson | 8-5 | Won last; fast workg. |
| 2 | Flashin Thru | x100 | Deering | 6-1 | Speedy contender. |
| 1 | Chirac | 110 | Fallon | 3-1 | Dropping down. |
| 5 | High Torque | 108 | Watson | 3-1 | Improved last time. |
| 3 | Straight Jacket | 103 | Johnson | 8-1 | May beat this rating |
| 4 | Tukits | x100 | Hayward | 15-1 | Not for mine. |

WESTYS JUNIOR came out of a two-year retirement to score a handy victory over this same route last time out. Since then the Archibald color-bearer has worked a blazing five panels in 1:00 3-5 as an indication of his fitness. FLASHING THRU, a gun from the barrier, has been freshened up since Texas and is good and sharp right now. The De Bord breadwinner shapes up and strictly the one to fear. CHIRAC didnt' show a thing in either of his two starts in this sector, but the Vanderbilt color-bearer is dropping down a long ways in class. He must be accorded a fighting chance at least.

SIXTH RACE—ACCOLADE, CHINESE EMPRESS, RED BADGE

SIXTH RACE—Three-year-olds and up. Claiming. $1000, 5½ furlongs:

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| 5 | Accolade | x113 | Faust | 8-5 | Call on last. |
| 6 | Chinese Empress | x105 | Deering | 3-1 | The main danger. |
| 2 | Red Badge | 110 | Knapp | 3-1 | Last very good. |
| 1 | Dancing Cloud | x96 | Johnson | 6-1 | In light enough. |
| 4 | Truly Yours | 105 | Knapp | 8-1 | Dropping down. |
| 3 | Lord Tournament | 114 | Allen | 10-1 | Best races in mud. |

ACCOLADE showed well enough last time to handle a field of this sort. The Bright Knight colt was on the front end until headed within sight of the wire by Postscript. CHINESE EMPRESS figures next best on form. The Flippen colorbearer finished close up to the top one that day. RED BADGE dropped a close decision to Moane Keala last Friday.

SEVENTH RACE—LEGENDER, OSCILLATION, MORALIST

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| 8 | Legender | x109 | Deering | 2-1 | Last easily; should repeat. |
| 1 | Oscillation | x99 | Wagner | 4-1 | Fast working contender. |
| 4 | Moralist | x118 | Seabo | 4-1 | Honest Pitaer. |
| 5 | Fabius | 111 | Hughes | 4-1 | Won last; more weight. |
| 2 | Long Bit | 100 | Wall | 12-1 | Speedy; may last. |
| 6 | Four Spot | x104 | Hanford | 12-1 | Improved last time. |
| 7 | Venetian | 109 | Robertson | 20-1 | Disregard last. |
| 3 | Chrysmute | x99 | Johnson | 30-1 | May come to life. |

Just can't pass up LEGENDER'S most recent effort. The Jess Burk's colorbearer was never fully extended in winning from a good field that day. Just a question of him running back to that effort. OSCILLATION is the clocker's tip. The Griffith mare whirled six panels in 1:13 4-5 for her final. MORALIST, honest as they come, will be hard to keep out of the picture.

EIGHTH RACE—FOREIGN LADY— THE POTTER, GUIDING LIGHT

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| 8 | Foreign Lady | x95 | Collins | 2-1 | Best bet on card. |
| 10 | The Potter | 117 | Finnerty | 4-1 | Back in form. |
| 11 | Guiding Light | 112 | Wall | 4-1 | Figures next best. |
| 9 | Goldfin | 100 | Wall | 6-1 | Improved last trip. |
| 1 | War Tide | x112 | Hanford | 6-1 | Second to Conchita. |
| 3 | Mars Palatine | x100 | Deering | 12-1 | Last helped. |
| 2 | Desert Sands | x113 | Wagner | 20-1 | Not in form. |
| 7 | Gracias | x112 | Faust | 20-1 | Close at times. |
| 5 | Fair Verbena | x95 | Faust | 20-1 | Speedy quitter. |
| 4 | Gold Sweep | x100 | Johnson | 20-1 | No recent line. |
| 6 | Our Pal | x113 | Hayward | 20-1 | For the End Book. |

If anything hops up and hands FOREIGN LADY a drubbing it will likely be THE POTTER. The latter returned to form by placing to Raycart last time. GUIDING LIGHT is well suited by all conditions and figures next best.

RAJAH Likes Mack's TEAM

COLEMAN GOING GREAT GUNS

By International News Service

New York, May 25—It appears that almost everybody, except Rajah Hornsby, has picked the St. Louis Browns to wind up in the basement of the American League.

However, the Rajah—pugnacious as always and as honest in his opinions as he is frank in voicing them—takes violent exception to this rating.

Well, then, whom does the Rajah think he possibly could pass?

"Any of them," snapped the Rajah today. I don't see any world beaters among them. They can all be licked."

From which you may correctly surmise that the Rajah hasn't a very high opinion of the American League this season.

The Rajah believes Connie Mack has the finest young team in the country, and, given a couple of pitchers, could walk, not run, to the next pennant.

Coleman Dangerous

"Trouble with my bunch," says the truthful Rajah, "is I've got too many four-hits-to-a-run hitters. But I can't kick because they give me all they've got. Trouble is, they haven't got enough to give.

It was this same Coleman who played no small part in putting the skids under Lefty Gomez and the Yanks yesterday, 6 to 3. Big Ed was never famous as a milk drinker when Mack had him, but Hornsby says he can handle Ed. Strangely enough, Big Ed seems delighted with his transfer to a tail-end club and a hard taskmaster.

His hitting since joining the club the other day must have given the other Brownies an incentive, for Burns and Pepper came to life with homers to help end a losing streak which had run through six games.

Johnson Tops American League

By Associated Press

New York, May 25—With a few notable exceptions the batting averages of the major league leaders continued their downward movement during the past week and the select group whose marks went up instead of down occupied prominent positions in the two races today.

The most notable batting feat for the week which ended with yesterday's games was that of Bob Johnson of the Philadelphia Athletics, who smashed his way into the American league lead with a 30-point gain which brought his average up to .421.

The senior circuit leader, Floyd (Arky) Vaughan of Pittsburgh managed to improve his mark to a lesser extent, bringing it up from .388 to .402 with ten hits in 24 times up.

The first ten regulars in each major league:

"Bibber" Comes Back In Arena

Bob "Bibber" McCoy, Holy Cross man mountain, will return to the wrestling wars after a long absence when he meets Farmer George McLeod in the feature of Alex MacLean's show Wednesday night at the Boston Arena.

McCoy has stayed on the sidelines, nursing a grievance. He claims he's been utterly overlooked by local promoters, although he's the N. E. heavyweight champion and holder of the $500 diamond-studded belt symbolic of such.

"Bibber" won't have his title and belt at stake against McLeod because McLeod has not lived in this section the required period of three years. Which may be just as well for McCoy, who may be handed a wrestling lesson by the crafty McLeod in their two out of three falls match.

ZOWIE Wins Salem FIRST

VANDERBILT AT RACES

By Walter Kiley

Rockingham Park, N. H., May 25—Among the more than 25,000 persons who jammed into Rockingham today for the tenth-day program of racing in New England was Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, noted race stable owner.

Vanderbilt, accompanied by his head trainer, Bud Stotler, flew here this morning with the express purpose of seeing his Identify, four-year-old son of Man o' War, perform as favorite in the $5000 added New Hampshire state handicap feature this afternoon.

In addition to Identity, which won both the old toboggan and Granite State Handicaps a week ago, Vanderbilt had three other horses running today, Spank in the opener, Glyndon Belle in the third and Dogmata coupled with Identify as an entry in the fifth.

Vanderbilt and Stotler were to fly back to New York after the conclusion of today's races.

Rockingham's ideal weather continued today with a warm sun beating down. Ten two-year-olds opened the program in a five furlongs sprint.

A record tote handle for the meeting appeared certain when $38,706 was wagered on the first race.

Zowie, a co-favorite, made short work of the opening number. He went out from the gun, led into the home stretch by a nose and finished fresh by a length and a half over the Greentree stable Jamoree which easily held off A. G. Vanderbilt's Spank for the place.

Rough Party, heavily backed favorite, made every post a winning one as he ran away with the third race to win handily by three full lengths. Pantoufle came fast to take the place by a nose from Up And Up.

60 TO 1 SHOT

Zowie, a co-favorite, made short work of the opening number. He finished fresh by a length and a half over the Greentree stable Jamboree.

The crowd went into hysterics when the mutuels figures were posted for the second race.

Across the board Palatine paid $121.90, $54.30, $27.40.

Hardly less spectacular were the place and show moneys on Wittekind, $19.70 and $11.30, while Judge Peak rewarded his backers handsomely with $32.60 for show.

LASH WINS Mile in 4-14.4

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 25 (AP)—Don Lash, newest of a line of Indiana distance stars, shattered one of the oldest records on the big ten books today by winning the mile run in 4 minutes, 14.4 seconds in the first event of the 35th annual western conference track and field championship meet.

RED SOX CLIMB BACK INTO FIRST DIVISION

Mr. Boston
Cass Ballyhoos Arena Go

By JACK CONWAY

SPEAKING of news: Ray Cass, Garden matchmaker, dropped in to talk about Frankie Britt of Fall River, who defends his New England welterweight championship against Louis Cocoa of New Haven at the Arena on Monday night.

"Who did Britt win the title from?" I asked Cass.

"Harry Devine in a bout staged in Fall River," he replied. "Devine had beaten Werther Arcelli, who won the championship by defeating Andy Callahan. The latter became title holder when he won from Lou Brouillard."

Mr. Boston

If Cass had gone back a bit more into the record he would have stated Brouillard won the title from Al Mello. The latter had replaced Eddie Shevlin as New England welterweight champion.

* * *

Cass says Britt will have to step to win from Louis Cocoa. The latter is a fast, shifty boxer, and also quite a puncher.

* * *

The Garden matchmaker pleaded with me not to overlook the 10-round semifinal which will bring together the "Greek Terror" and Bud Mignault.

Yeah!

* * *

In the sixes, Clayton Settino will oppose Elmer Chase, while Babe Synott will take on Stanley Harris, not the Senators' manager.

* * *

PICKS ROSS

I ASKED Cass who he believed would win the Jimmy McLarnin-Barney Ross bout in New York on Tuesday night.

"I like Ross," he replied. "McLarnin is getting old and has slowed down. Ross is in good condition and ready to go."

* * *

* * *

Alex MacLean dropped into this office with the information he has signed "Bibber" McCoy to oppose "Farmer" McLeod in his feature bout at the Arena on next Wednesday night.

* * *

Harry Piers will have Frank Sexton as an opponent in the semifinal. In special bouts, Billy Longson will take on Tommy Rae, while Leo Hyatt will clash with Stab Stickney.

* * *

Henri DeGlane insists he should receive the next crack at youthful Dan O'Mahoney. The Frenchman has shown his oldtime wrestling form since he returned to this country and is once more headed for the wrestling heights.

* * *

If DeGlane beats O'Mahoney, he wants to meet Ed Don George again. DeGlane lost his title to George at the Garden two years ago last March when he suffered a broken collarbone.

* * *

AL LIPPE

"Well, we start on the trip round the world May 1. First stop Manila, then on to Japan, China, South Africa, Bombay and Colombo India, Port Said, Cairo, Egypt, London, Paris, Italy, Germany, Spain, then to America.

"In the party will be four of us.

"Fred Henneberry, light heavyweight and middleweight champion of Australia. Henneberry has defeated Ambrose Palmer, Jack Carroll, Dave Shade and all the best that they have brought here and all the local boys. Henneberry is a real champion. Irish boy, born in Australia. Age 23 years.

"Vernon Cormier, age 22 years, born in Canada, British boy, has made his home in Worcester, Mass., the past seven years. Cormier came to Australia in January, 1935, for three fights, has had 10 fights and is undefeated in Australia. He has fought Herb Bishop, Merv. Blandon, Llew Edwards, Claude Varner, Bill Wooler, Joe Hall, Bert Osborne, Young Eagle, Young Maroney.

"Fought Bishop twice. Herb Bishop is the light weight champion of Australia, Hall the featherweight champion. Cormier beat them both, all 15 round bouts. Cormier is a real featherweight, but fights lightweights.

"Phil Zwick, born in Milwaukee, Wis., age 24, German American. Zwick had had nine fights here in Australia, winning eight, losing one, but the press said Zwick did not lose that one. Zwick has fought Herb Bishop, Alf Blatch, Johnny Maroney, Merv Blandon, Joe Hall, Jimmy Purcell, twice, Lee Brander, Billy O'Brien. The loss was to Merv Blandon, and he would not fight Zwick a return fight.

"In America Vernon Cormier has defeated some of the best featherweights, Zwick the same. I myself don't think there is any boy in the world that can defeat any of the above the way the boys have been fighting in Australia."

Hole-By-Hole Description of Little, Tweddel Match for Golf Title

in a bunker to the right of the green. Little chipped four feet from the cup and missed his first putt while Tweddell's third slid 20 feet past the hole and he got down in two putts.

SEVENTH HOLE, 548 YARDS, FIVE

Little pounded out a low drive into a howling cross-wind that rolled 20 yards further than Tweddell's. They smothered their wood seconds and were still 100 yards short of the green. Both made fine third shots 20 feet from the cup and stuck their approach putts stone dead for a halve in par 5s.

EIGHTH HOLE, 388 YARDS, PAR FOUR

Little became four up when he outdrove Tweddell by 50 yards, planted his second iron six feet from the cup and holed out for a birdie three—the first sub-par score of the match. Tweddell overplayed the green with his iron second, dubbed his third and then rammed down a 40-footer for a four.

NINTH HOLE, 163 YARDS, PAR THREE

Tweddell reduced his deficit to three holes here as the champion topped his tee shot into the rough short of the green and came out 12 feet past the cup. Tweddell's drive was 20 feet short of the hole and his approach putt hung on the lip of the cup for an easy par as Little missed.

Little, out ....3 4 5 4 4 5 5 3 4—37
Tweddell .....4 5 5 5 4 5 5 4 3—40

TENTH HOLE, 337 YARDS, PAR 4

Tweddell teed off weakly, but made a grand recovery to within 25 feet of the pin and laid his putt stiff for a sure four as Little drove 330 yards to a bunker in front of the green, pitched 10 feet past the cup and barely missed his putt for a birdie three, as the hole was halved in 4s, Little remaining 3 up.

ELEVENTH HOLE, 472 YARDS, PAR 4

The Californian poked a prodigious drive that carried 40 yards further than Tweddell's, fired an iron second 15 feet to the right of the cup and then holed out for a great birdie 3, sending the gallery which was growing steadily into raptures. Tweddell's second rolled off to the left into a clump of bushes and he recovered to within two feet of the hole for a 4.

TWELFTH HOLE, 228 YARDS, PAR THREE:

They ran into trouble on their tee shots, Little's drifting into tall grass to the left of the green and Tweddell's finding a bunker on the other side. Tweddell exploded brilliantly ten feet beyond the cup and missed while Little's chip was 20 feet too strong but he approached to within 18 inches for a halve in 4s.

THIRTEENTH HOLE, 365 YARDS, PAR FOUR

On his favorite driving range Little drove 30 yards short of the green and rolled up his approach nine feet from the cup. Tweddell pitched a high lob of 20 feet past the flag and then holed out for a three—his first birdie—while Little's try for a birdie rimmed the cup. Little was now three up.

FOURTEENTH HOLE, 447 YARDS, PAR FOUR:

They matched shots all the way to halve in par 4s. They approached to the front edge of the green, 40 feet shy of the pin, and their first putts were a yard short. The referee measured the distance and found Little's ball to be a fraction of an inch away. The defending champion ran the ball down and Tweddell did likewise.

Unlimbering a mammoth drive that ended 60 yards ahead of Tweddell's, Little followed it up with an iron approach 25 feet to the right of the pin and got down in two putts for a par four to become four up again. Tweddell cut his second across the green, chipped 12 feet past the hole and missed.

16TH HOLE, 347 YARDS, PAR 4

Outdriven by 30 yards, Tweddell flailed a long iron into the high grass to the side of the green. Little topped his second into a deep bunker and, unable to take a proper stance with one foot high on the bank, Little exploded 15 feet past the cup. Tweddell outed 12 feet short of the cup and they got down in two putts for a half in one-over-par fives.

SEVENTEENTH HOLE 411 YARDS, PAR FOUR

Little's iron second almost struck the flag and rolled 25 feet past the cup, while Tweddell's approach was twice as far from the can. The former winner of the title almost holed out and Little's first putt lipped the cup as they halved in 4s, Little remaining four up.

EIGHTEENTH HOLE, 349 YARDS, PAR FOUR

With a following wind, Little drove 330-yards to the apron of the green, 40 yards past Tweddell's tee shot. Tweddell planted his approach seven feet short of the cup and holed out for a winning birdie three as Little stuck his approach inside but missed the first putt.

19TH HOLE, 215 YARDS, PAR THREE

Due to a misunderstanding the start of the afternoon round was delayed 20 minutes but Dr. Tweddell lost no time in reducing the defending champion's lead. He teed off to the far edge of the green into rough, chipped three feet from the cup and holed it for a winning par three as Little's drive bunkered and he exploded strongly off the carpet. He came back three feet from the cup with his third. Little was now two up.

20TH HOLE, 424 YDS., PAR 4:

The Pacific Club player's lead was cut to one up as he drove into a clump of small trees against a fence bordering the railroad tracks and took two strokes to get out. He was five feet past the cup in five and conceded the hole to Tweddell, who was short but straight all the way and stuck his approach putt stone dead for a five.

21ST HOLE, 461 YARDS, PAR FOUR

The gallery groaned at the spectacle of Little topping a drive that carried 150 yards into a bunker, while Tweddell's tee shot was far down the middle. Little came out and stuck his ball alongside his rival's drive, and then he flubbed another shot into a bunker. Meanwhile Tweddell was home in three, 60 feet from the cup, and Little's fourth was on the carpet 20 feet from the hole and close to the line of Tweddell's first putt which knocked the champion's ball closer to the hole. They both missed putts for 5s—Little remaining one up.

22ND HOLE, 425 YARDS, PAR FOUR:

The champion regained his poise and belted a drive 50 yards past his challenger's, whose tee shot caught the rough. Tweddell dubbed his second in a worse rough as Little skimmed a low iron, 12 feet past the cup. Tweddell, however, made a sensational recovery to within six feet of the flag and holed out while Little required two putts for a half in par 4s.

23RD HOLE, 186 YARDS, PAR THREE

Neither found the small green with his drive, Tweddell's 50 yards short in a deep bunker and Little's in a hollow to the right of the green. Tweddell exploded to the edge of the green and Little made a fine pitch 12 feet from the cup. The Briton's first putt stopped a yard short and then he missed from that distance to lose the hole and become two down again as Little safely got down in two.

TWENTY-FOURTH HOLE, 422 YARDS, PAR FOUR

Little appeared to have thoroughly recovered from his first attack of nerves and smacked his drive 30 yards beyond the Briton's. Tweddell's second veered into a bunker, while Little's found a spot on the green 35 feet from the hole. Tweddell recovered 60 feet from the hole and sent chills up and down Little's back and the spectators' spines as his first putt lipped the cup. Little made a bold stab for a birdie 3, but his par 4 clinched the hole.

25TH HOLE, 548 YARDS, PAR FIVE

The gallery of 10,000 had become so unwieldy by this time it took the mashals ten minutes to clear the fairway. The wind carried Little's drive far to the right in a trap close to the dreaded railroad tracks. Tweddell poked his down the middle. The Californian got off a fine explosion but topped his third shot and finally got home in four, 40 feet from the cup. Tweddell shot his third 15 feet from the hole and both got down in two putts and Little's lead was cut to two holes.

26TH HOLE, 388 YARDS, PAR 4

Little's drive rolled only a few feet from the railroad fence and 30 yards past the medico's drive. Tweddell smothered his second into a cavernous bunker and Little spanked his to the carpet, 30 feet short of the hole. Tweddell received a great hand for his blind explosion which landed ten feet from the cup. They both got down in two putts. Little for a winning four again to go three up.

27TH HOLE, 163 YARDS, PAR THREE

The crowd sent up a great cheer as Tweddell's tee shot sat down three feet from the cup and he holed out for a birdie two to turn into the home stretch two down. Little's drive rolled off the green into the rough and he came back a foot from the hole.

AFTERNOON ROUND

Out—

Little ....... 4 6 6 4 4 4 6 6 4 3—41
Tweddell.... 3 5 6 4 5 5 5 5 5 2—40

28TH HOLE, 337 YARDS, PAR FOUR

Tweddell had the better of the drives, his being straight, and Little's off line in a trap. Their second were short and they chipped close to the cup for par 4s and a half.

TWENTY-NINTH HOLE, 472 YARDS, PAR FOUR

Little outdrove the doctor by 40 yards, but Tweddell played a magnificent 200-yard spoon shot to within five feet of the hole and sank the putt to become only one down as Little hooked his second across the fairway into the woods and then chipped out beautifully four feet from the cup for a four.

30th HOLE, 228 YARDS, PAR THREE

The crowd started going wild as Tweddell gradually wiped out Little's lead. He accomplished the trick by planting his tee shot 15 feet from the cup and getting down in two putts for a winning par three and the match was squared as Little teed into the rough, chipped short of the green and then nestled his third alongside the hole.

31ST HOLE, 365 YARDS, PAR 4

Tweddell's drive divided the fairway into equal parts for 250 yards while Little sliced his well into the next fairway. It required five minutes to push the crowd back to give him a shot at the ball. He played a beauty second over a hill 20 feet past the hole and rolled up his putt dead for a four. Tweddell approached 15 feet beyond the can and also laid his putt stiff for a half in 4s.

32ND HOLE, 447 YARDS, PAR 4

After they hit their drives the marshals again delayed the match to clear the green of spectators. Tweddell put his second just short of the green and Little punched his 40 feet from the cup. Little studied the putt for five minutes and then rolled it up dead for a winning four and Tweddell chipped up four feet short and his first putt hit the back of the can and bounced out.

33RD HOLE, 478 YARDS, PAR FOUR

Little drove 30 yards further than Tweddell and approached 15 feet to the righ of the cup, hole high. Tweddell pushed his second into a bunker and then gave long and careful thought to his recovery. He dubbed the shot, barely getting out of the trap, and chipped his fourth a foot from the cup. Little got down easily in two putts for a par four to go two up.

34TH HOLE, 347 YARDS, PAR FOUR:

Little outdrove the doctor by 50 yards down the center of the fairway. Tweddell stuck his second eighteen feet from the cup and Little pushed his into a bunker. The defending champion exploded 15 feet from the pin and holed out for a half in fours as Tweddell two putted.

35TH HOLE, 411 YARDS, PAR FOUR

They both hit fine drives, Little's bordering on the rough. Little sliced his second into a swarm of spectators in the rough and then chipped ten feet from the hole. Tweddell's second hopped into a bunker and emerged spectacularly as his ball struck the back of the cup and bounced out two feet past. Little missed his first putt and Tweddell sank for a four. Little became dormie one.

36TH HOLE, 349 YARDS, PAR 4

Little sliced his drive into the spectators in the rough, the ball stopping on a bare spot. Tweddell banged his tee shot 250 yards down the middle. Little made a grand recovery over a deep trap onto the green 28 feet from the hole. Tweddell's approach was three feet inside. Little ran up his putt stone dead and Tweddell's bid to square the match slid inches wide of the cup.

Like 1-4 Mile Track

Dog Chasers Doing Away With Longer Route

(This is the sixth and last of a series of articles on greyhound racing, which soon will have its inaugural appearance at the new Wonderland track at Revere Beach.)

No. 6

THE GREYHOUNDS ARE OFF

By Sam Cohen

Greyhound tracks vary in distance. The largest is approximately 5-16 of a mile in length. The majority are ¼-mile. The new Revere track will be the latter distance.

Although for many years 5-16 of a mile was the longest distance run for the greyhounds, there is a growing tendency to use the ⅜ of a mile course for feature races.

The old 3-16 of a mile race is rapidly being ruled out. Frequently the futurity distance is used on some tracks. This race is between the ¼ mile and 5-16 mile distances.

Once the dogs are safely placed in the respective stalls, the lead up men are given time to take positions at a point 100 yards beyond the finish line where the greyhounds are stopped by a huge canvas curtain pulled acros the track.

The more expertly the rabbit is operated the better the race. Of course the greyhounds are not permitted to catch the lure but the operators does his best to keep up the racing canines' enthusiasm.

As the winning dogs poke their noses across the finish line the judges order the winning numbers placed before the public but as in the case of horse racing these are not official until the winners are examined by the judges on the stand.

GROVE Hurls NICELY

SO SOX BEAT CHAMPS

By Bill Grimes

Until his Detroit Tigers were stopped by the Red Sox, Manager Mickey Cochrane's plans were to send Tom Bridges after the final encounter at Fenway Park today and save Joe Sullivan, his rookie southpaw, for the New York Yankees.

They took three out of four from the Senators in Washington and moved into Philadelphia where they downed the Athletics in two games.

Then they—or to be more exact, Hank Greenberg hung it on the Red Sox in the opening game at Fenway Park.

The Sox hit the ball hard enough to beat all the "Schoolboy" Rowe you could crowd into Fenway Park on Thursday, but Greenberg's home run drive over the left field wall and a couple of sensational stops by the lanky boy from the Bronx turned the tide against the Men of Cronin.

The Tigers hit Grove hard enough to score a dozen runs but when Almada raced back and pulled down "Goose" Goslin's long fly for the final out, the Detroiters were trailing 8 to 4 and had dropped back into the second division, exchanging berths, for the second time, in as many days with the Red Sox.

Here are the Rules:

To play the "Daily Double" Game name the horses you think will win the first and third races at Rockingham. Then place the names of the horses you believe will run second and third in each of the two races.

Entries that pick the "Daily Double" will be given first consideration. Should there be fewer "Daily Double" winners than there are prizes, winners of the remaining tickets will be scored as follows: First counts 8 points, second counts 4 points, and third counts 2 points in each of the two races. The entries scoring the largest number of points will be declared the winners.

In the event there are more "Daily Double" winners than there are prizes, the prizes will be given to the "Daily Double" winners who score the largest number of points in selecting the horses that run second and third in the first and third races. In scoring these winners the following rules will be observed: Place counts 4 points and show 2 points for each race. Tied contestants will each receive a ticket.

In the event any of the horses you pick are scratched, the next horse will be automatically moved up one space on your list. For example, should your first choice fail to start, the second horse named becomes your first choice and the third horse your second choice.

Except where horses are scratched, your selections must run in the order in which you list them on your entry blank in order to be counted. ONLY THE NAME OF ONE HORSE MAY BE SELECTED WHERE THE HORSES ARE COUPLED IN BETTING, AS IN ENTRIES AND FIELDS. The decision of the judges will be final and no entries returned.

Each day's winners will be printed in all editions of the Boston Evening American the day after the races are run (Saturday's winners in Monday's editions).

FLOYD GIBBONS' PAGE OF THRILLS AND MYSTERY

"When Brutes Go Mad"

Blood-Crazed Demons Fought on the Rug While Babies Slept Nearby

By FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO, EVERYBODY.

There is a type of yarn often seen in magazines, boys and girls, that is known as a dog story. In those yarns, the pooch is always the hero of the tale and drags his master or one of his master's kids out of a lake, or from a burning building just in the nick of time.

FLOYD GIBBONS

Well, sir, here is a dog story, but it doesn't quite live up to the magazine ideas of what a dog story ought to be. In the first place, the two mutts in this yarn are not the heroes at all. And while I'd like very much to tell you that they dragged somebody out of a lake or a burning building, this is a true yarn and I've got to stick to the facts.

Mrs. Walker De Waters, of 124 Overlook Terrace, Grasmere, Staten Island, N. Y., sent in this yarn, and Mrs. De Waters is a woman who ought to know her dog stories. She has a four-year-old brindle Dane, named Major—a huge dog who adores his master and mistress, tolerates their two small children, but is sometimes ferocious with the family's friends, and doesn't stand for strangers and intruders at all.

The De Waters have some neighbors who also have a dog. A wolfhound which they brought back from Russia several years ago. The wolfhound is a beautiful silken-haired creature, but badly trained and half wild. He spends the greater part of his time in a small pen, and the rest of it on a leash, because when he is let loose, he takes to the tall timber and doesn't come back.

Well, sir, one morning last spring that wolfhound got away. Mrs. De Waters didn't know about it, or she might not have felt so safe in leaving her home with the door open and her two small children taking their afternoon nap in the nursery.

The first intimation she had that anything was wrong was when she came home and heard a terrifying medley of growling, snarling noises issuing from somewhere within the house. She ran into her living room, and there, in the middle of the floor, she saw the two dogs—Major and the wolfhound—fighting with a desperation and a determination that looked like death for one or both.

There are dog fights and dog fights, boys and girls. Most dog fights don't amount to a bill of beans. But in order to get the terrifying picture that held Mrs. De Waters spellbound in the doorway, you have to remember that Great Danes are the biggest dogs there are—great, hulking monsters, weighing upward of two hundred pounds—taller than a man when standing on their hind legs, and able to kill a man with one crashing lunge, and one snap at his throat with their gleaming white teeth.

The wolfhound, on the other hand, is every bit as dangerous an animal. He is not so big as the Dane, but he is thin and wiry, and moves like a streak of greased lightning. He has the sharp teeth and the long, punishing jaw of fighting dogs the world over. Just look at his name if you want any more evidence of his dangerousness. He is called a wolfhound because, over in Russia where he comes from, he kills wolves.

Such, boys and girls, were the two monsters that Mrs. De Waters found snapping and lunging at each other in the middle of her living room floor. And in the nursery down the hall, on the other side of an open door, her two children lay sleeping.

Except for the babies, Mrs. De Waters was alone in the house. The wolfhound's teeth were in Major's throat. The Dane was straddling the wolfhound—seemed to be tearing him to pieces. Mrs. De Waters ran for a pail of water and threw it over both dogs. Surprised, Major loosened his hold and the wolfhound leaped free. There was a streak of white followed by a streak of brown, as both dogs dashed into the hall. There the battle was renewed again, within 10 feet of the open nursery door.

Mrs. De Waters' one wish now was to guard the passage to her children's room. Major was past hearing her voice now—past everything but his lust to kill. Now the wolfhound broke away—went tearing through the house again, the Dane after him.

The Dane caught the hound—the wolfhound broke away again. All over the house they fought, snapping at each other's flanks, each one trying for a grip at the other's throat.

The De Waters house was a shambles. The fighting brutes tore up the rugs, broke lamps, overturned furniture, each in his mad scramble to get the death grip on the other. Dodging those blood-maddened beasts, Mrs. De Waters opened all the doors she could reach, hoping the wolfhound would run out. But the Dane wouldn't give him the chance.

Finally, they fought their way into the hall. Each dog got his teeth into the other and wouldn't let go. To Mrs. De Waters it looked like the end of both of them. She ran for another pail of water and flung the whole bucketful full on Major's nose. The big Dane choked and loosened his grip. The wolfhound leaped free and dashed through the open door.

Then, before Major could get through after him, Mrs. De Waters slammed the door shut. The fight was over, but long after both dogs had forgotten it, Mrs. De Waters could still get all weak inside, thinking of those two blood-maddened brutes tearing each other to pieces within 20 feet of her sleeping children.

It just goes to show, boys and girls, that all the adventures don't happen in the French Foreign Legion. And I've got a date with you on Monday to spin another yarn of a Portland boy's battle with a maniac.

BOSTON Sees New Cinema Oddity

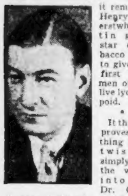
By GEORGE HOLLAND

With the advent of "The Werewolf of London" at the Keith Memorial, wolf-men and frog-eating plants are added to the collection of cinema oddities which Boston has garnered in the past month of movie-going.

We have had vampires of both genders, synthetic monsters, likewise male and female; and now it remains for Henry Hull, erstwhile distinguished star of "Tobacco Road," to give us our first specimen of a real live lycanthropoid.



George Holland

* * *

If that word proves something of a twister, it simply means the wolf-man into which Dr. Glendon, noted scientist, was wont to turn during the fullnes of the moon.

Dr. Glendon, madly in love with his wife and appalled at the nuisance he is making of himself among the neighbors with his back-fence yowling, is cultivating a mariphasa plant. The sap of this amazing flora is believed to halt the monthly transvection of werewolves.

To put the unhappy scientist in a further dither, one Captain Paul Ames, a handsome childhood playmate of his wife, comes back to England to lay immediate seige to the heart of the puzzled woman.

* * *

When they are stolen by Dr. Yogami, a mysterious Oriental who wants to save the souls of two other Londoners similarly afflicted, Glendon is helpless in the face of his ailment.

At length, after a series of grisly killings, the wolf-man is tracked down and summarily shot. Things had come to a pretty pass indeed and it was just about time.

* * *

Mr. Hull, despite a notable reputation for disguise, does not quite click with his makeup as the werewolf. One felt that with a hearty sneeze the werewolf would have become Mr. Hull again—a bit bedraggled and hairy, to be sure, but none the less Mr. Hull.

The always excellent Warner Oland is seen as Dr. Yogami, while Valerie Hobson, who has spent most of her time lately screaming at assorted monsters, is quite lovely as Mrs. Glendon.

Other people in this promising cast were J. M. Kerrigan, the amiable Irish comedian whom you'll remember as the comic little hanger-on of "The Informer," and Lester Matthews, latest importation from the English studios.

Victor Hugo's Detective

When Victor Hugo created the cold-blooded detective Javert, who dogged the footsteps of the wretched Jean Valjean through the 1500 pages of "Les Miserables," he created the prototype of all the detectives of fiction and films that have followed.

In Hugo's own words, "He had a religious respect for his duties. He was a spy as another man is a priest. Woe to the wretch who came into his clutches! He would have arrested his own father if escaping from prison and denounced his own mother had she broken her ban . . . A pitiless watchman, a ferocious honesty, a marble-hearted spy."

When Darryl Zanuck decided to screen Victor Hugo's immortal work, there was only one man in his mind for the part. That was Charles Laughton.

Cecil B. De Mille to Film 'Samson and Delilah'

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

(Copyright, 1935, by Universal Service)

Los Angeles, May 25—Here is the biggest news of any year! Cecil B. De Mille is going to make a musical! But don't worry, it'll be in the religious mood that has made him so famous.

Paramount has bought the classic opera, "Samson and Delilah," and has assigned De Mille to bring this story of the world's most famous "haircut" to the screen.

Louella O. Parsons

Harold Lamb, who wrote the present De Mille opus, "The Crusades," will adapt the new opera with Jeanie MacPherson, who is usually there when C. B. is preparing a picture. My guess is that Gladys Swarthout will play Delilah but who for Samson—where is there another Caruso?

* * *

Warner Brothers studio has become another Castle Salzburg. Max Reinhardt's little apprentice, Olivia De Haviland, has already graduated, just like so many other famous stars did when the maestro was in Austria. Olivia has been chosen to play opposite James Gagney in "The Irish In Us," and it's her big break. Herr Reinhardt can be proud of the little gal he discovered for his big stage presentation of "Midsummer Night's Dream." She's making good in a big way.

* * *

Who said anything about the "weaker sex?" Sam Goldwyn doesn't think that about women. He just "stole" Jane Murfin away from RKO and has signed her to a long-term contract on his personal writing staff. Jane wrote "Smilin' Through" and "Lilac Time" for the stage in collaboration with Jane Cowl, and also did the screen plays for "Roberta" and "The Little Minister." Sam now has three famous women playwrights as his "top" writers, Jane, Rachel Crothers and Lillian Hellman.

Chatter in Hollywood: 'Tis said Greta Garbo is extremely unhappy over her romance with George Brent. Believe it or not, the greatest screen vamp of modern times is reported to have fallen desperately in love with the handsome Brent. And when Brent, who loves to fly and play tennis, seemed to prefer his sports, Garbo is said to have actually sulked. Well, personally I think this makes her more human. And another thing that makes her human is that she is rowing with Fredric March. Freddie, who is tops today when it comes to acting, has been unconsciously doing a little scene-stealing, and Greta doesn't like it.

* * *

Universal's ace director, John Stahl, moves over to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer the moment he finishes "Snow Boat" with Irene Dunne. John has had an arrangement with M-G-M for over a year to do a picture for them. I shouldn't be surprised if eventually Stahl, who is an old friend of Louis B. Mayer, and who was associated in business with him some years ago, would not definitely move to the Culver City Studios. I don't know what his arrangement is with Universal, but it's probably of a nature that permits him to make an occasional outside production.

Snapshots of Hollywood

ANITA LOUISE'S new big moment is BOB HOOVER. Where is the boy friend, TOM BROWNE? MADAME JERITZA all animation at luncheon at a spot; the entire fashion show revolved around her table, where the pretty models showed the latest fashions; BARBARA BENNETT DOWNEY off for New York after a gay three weeks in Hollywood; the GENE MARKEYS (JOAN BENNETT) entertaining at dinner for MRS. DOWNEY, who returns later in the summer with her children; ERNST LUBITSCH'S party a grand and glorious success; MARLENE DIETRICH looking too lovely; PRINCESS KATHERINE of Greece and scores of others present; CONSTANCE COLLIER, Hollywood's new social dowager queen, to keep right on dowagering; MGM has signed her to a new contract; MIRIAM HOPKINS planes home Sunday; her mother is reported better; Annapolis will look like Hollywood with two companies shooting there—DICK POWELL and the "Anchor's Aweigh" gang and AL HALL and his "Annapolis Farewell" crowd; WARNER BAXTER, KETTI GALLIAN, JOHN MILJAN, J. CARROLL MAISH, SOLEDAD JIMINEZ, all members of "The Pampas Moon" cast, dining out. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Actress Asks Marlene Aid

By Universal Service

Los Angeles, May 25—Wistfully, Mary Kid, German film actress, gazed over the rail of the Danish motorship India, while Captain Sven Krarup kept sympathetic guard.

She wanted to go ashore and see Hollywood but the immigration officers said she couldn't.

The trouble was, Fraulein Kid explained, that when the ship, which she boarded in Vancouver, B. C., bound for London, stopped at San Francisco she told the immigration officers there that she knew Marlene Dietrich. They telegraphed Miss Dietrich, she said, and were informed that Marlene didn't knkow her. Said Miss Kid:

"But they gave my real name—Gertrude Keul—and not my screen name. Of course she wouldn't recognize that."

So today Fraulein Kid had sent another message to Miss Dietrich and was waiting for an answer.

She said she had made 60 pictures in Germany.

Star Bill Pleases

By far the most thrilling and exciting exploits of the screen season are those of the smart federal sleuths in "G Men," one of the features on the new bill at the Scollay.

Jimmy Cagney is the fast-talking and quicker-thinking agent in the Department of Justice, a "G" man with the ingenuity, determination and acumen of the Northwest Mounted rolled into one.

Jimmy's pal has been killed in the line of duty, which is enough to rouse him into a round of activity that keeps the suspense rolling on high. As a sideline, there's his romance with Margaret Lindsay, who gets herself kidnaped, and his friendship with pretty Ann Dvorak, whose thug of a husband turned out to be a vicious killer.

Together with Robert Armstrong, the quartet of screen headliners turns in an excellent performance in a film that glorifies the men who get the gangs rather than the muggs who make them up.

Mr. Horton is very amusing as the timid soul who hasn't nerve enough to ask for a raise, but who turns the tables on his hard-boiled boss and wins Karen Morley as his bride.

Actress-Pilot At St. Louis

East St. Louis, Ill., May 25 (AP)—Ruth Chatterton, movie actress who wants to be the first of her profession to make a cross-country flight, has landed at Curtiss-Steinberg airport near here.

Distinguished Visitors from Ireland

EILEEN CROWE F. J. McCORMICK

Eileen Crowe and F. J. McCormick are among the principal players from the famous Abbey Theater Players of Dublin, who open a two weeks' engagement at the Hollis Monday.

Strong Variety Bill At Loew's Orpheum

The knock 'em down, drag 'em out type of comedy gets a good and funny workout on the new variety bill at Loew's Orpheum. Soberer and equally thrilling happenings occur on the screen, where "The Mark of the Vampire" is the attraction.

Gold, Raye and Cross, who kept yesterday's customers in those well-known gales of laughter, displayed some exceptional skill at dancing, too, and rounded out one of the fastest acts on the boards .

A colorful tabloid revue, "Toyland," proved another treat, with a company of talented performers, as well as a lad named Mickey Conte, who made an accordion do things you never heard before.

Olyn Landick put over his clever female impersonations with a decidedly unique comedy angle, and Gwen Stradford and Lynn Maybery in a skit called "Walking Home" kept the laughs rolling along.

One of the hits of the new bill is the appearance of the lovely-to-look-at Peggy Calvert, billed as the "Sweetheart of the Blues." Her bridesmaid who should have been a bride, her impersonation of Sophie Tucker, and her "dance hall blues," numbers disclosed plenty of talent plus personality.

Tod Browning, directing the fantastic vampire legend, with Bela Lugosi as the deadly marauder, has fashioned in "The Mark of the Vampire," a horror picture that's tops for those who like that sort of thing.

2 Feature Films at Loew's

By ANN AMES

That the best things in life are free is agreeably and pretty convincingly set forth in "Age of Indiscretion," one of the screen features on the new program at Loew's State.

Paul Lukas, Madge Evans and Helen Vinson are the triangle in this well knit story of divorce. The pearls without price are the loyalty and love of a small boy, played with ringing conviction by young David Jack Holt.

The affluent new husband is tied securely to some strong maternal apron strings, wielded by May Robson in her best and most becomingly belligerent manner.

This crusty old matriarch, for some perverse reason wants the child o fdivorce. When she discovers a playful three-cornered pillow fight between the small object of her affections, his father and his loyal secretary (Madge Evans), she gathers her forces to fight for the child's custody.

It's not as saccharine as it sounds, Paul Lukas is Barrymore-ish and charming, and Miss Vinson adds still further to her excellent reputation as his unsympathetic wife. Miss Evans conceals her aching heart with dignity, lady novelists take a ride in the fluttering hands of Catharine Doucet, Ralph Forbes doesn't have to unbend in his unimportant role, and Flush, the wise spaniel of "The Barretts," is the most perfect of canines.

A mad race into heavy China Seas, with a near mutiny, a typhoon and a three-cornered romance between Ann Sothern, Ralph Bellamy and John Buckler provide plenty of action in "Eight Bells," the companion picture on the State program. Arthur Hohl and Charley Grapewin do excellent work in the supporting cast.

In Cantor Film

Borrah Minnevitch, harmonica king to millions, will have a prominent role in Eddie Cantor's new picture, tentatively titled "Dreamland." Boston's Harry Einstein, known to radio fans as "Nick Parkyakakas," is also featured in the cast.

Mystery Film at RKO

By HARRIS MORGAN

"The Man Who Knew Too Much," which opened yesterday at the Keith-Boston proves that it doesn't pay to be in on too many secrets.

A bullet plugged through a window at a hotel in the Alps starts the sinister snowball that rolls up into the most complicated blizzard of mystery imaginable.

To keep them quiet the political conspirators, as nasty a crowd of cut-throats as you'll see in a dozen films, hold little Betty Lawrence for ransom.

Back in London the desperate Lawrences don't dare tell. The authorities cajole and threaten, there are mysterious telephone warnings, a fast bit of dirty work with a gas inhalator at a dentist's office, an attempted assassination in crowded Albert Hall, and murderous and mysterious happenings at the singularly drab headquarters of the mystic Sun Worshippers.

The film is distinguished by some admirable acting. Peter Lorre, guaranteed to frighten almost anybody to death, turns in a performance to match his superb work as the whistling murderer in the memorable "M."

Leslie Banks and Edna Best are the harassed parents, and the charming child actress, Nova Pilbeam, turns in a piece of emotional acting that might well be the despair of her elders.

It's a pity the production called for by such a splendid cast is so inadequate. That noticeable weakness, and the fact that the general cluttering up of the multiple plot makes a tension that should be good merely ridiculous, keeps "The Man Who Knew Too Much" out of the top bracket, where it rightfully belongs.

Set to music by Ray Nobel, the old-time favorite, "Brewster's Millions," has Jack Buchanan, another English star, in his smoothest and smartest screen portrayal, as the fabulous fellow who couldn't spend his money fast enough.

Ozzie Big Star at Met

By Joyce Dana

No matter how real and earnest are domestic difficulties, they make grand comedy.

If you don't think so, watch Charlie Ruggles, Mary Boland and their hilarious squabbles in "People Will Talk," at the Metropolitan.

You can listen to Ozzie Nelson and his orchestra, and see and hear the lovely Harriet Hilliard, who headline the stage show, and have a good time, too.

The Ruggles-Boland combination, in a somewhat unlikely but very funny story of suburban high jinks, gains immeasurably in humor because the participants take it so seriously.

After 23 years of wedding bliss, Charlie and Mary are the ever loving Wiltons. Leila Hyams, their newly married daughter, comes home to mother in a pet. Her husband has danced too long with that "other woman" (there's at least one in every country club.)

The longer and more merrily the plot boils, and the faster the verandah brigade prattles, the hotter the water into which poor Charlie lands. As if his troubles weren't bad enough, he has to referee a charity wrestling match, getting all snarled up with hammer locks and toe-holds, and winds up by shadow-fighting the mythical kidnappers who have taken him and Mary for a ride!

"The sweethearts of radioland," singly or together, provide plenty of melodic entertainment, their "Thumbin's My Way Back Home," "Whistle in the Thistle," and a new and different arangement of that old-timer, "Put On Your Old Grey Bonnet," were among the show's highlights.

Among others back of the footlights are The Randalls in dances, Florence Robinson and Brother, Radcliffe and Rogers and the Elida Ballet.

'JUNGLE GOLD'

By Rex Beach

Marchand, too, was all but speechless. He had seen Steve in battle but never had he seen him in a mood quite like this and he realized for the first time how greatly the Pentecost he used to know had changed during these last few years. The fellow had hardened; he had turned to steel.

"I'm sorry you did this; why didn't you tell me about it?"

"Why should I?"

"Well! As president of the company, it seems to me——"

Marchand shook his head.

"A grudge is one thing, business is quite another; they don't mix. There's a code of common decency, a limit to commercial rivalry, and I've kept my record clean. That was crooked work, Steve."

"Wetzel left a wife and three kids in the states. Fred Tiblier has caused 20 murders up country during the past six months.

"He knew Mattern was a killer when he imported him. Nevertheless he brought him back while I was the chief peace officer in the republic."

"Now, Steve! You know very well you didn't pull this in the interest of peace or justice. Mattern had nothing to do with it, either. You did it because Tiblier was in our way and there was a fruit famine. Lord!

"If those two cargoes were dumped I—I'm wondering what our stuff brought. All the same, I don't like it."

"Dan! Sit down. Listen to me. I've got my fighting clothes on and we'd better have this out right now.

Had It Coming

"You admitted the job was too big for you by calling me in. In reality, it's too big for any one man. Well I got you out of a hole.

"It's a rough business and you handled it with kid gloves. I'm going at it bare-handed. It's the only way. From now on we split command and—

"Just a minute, please!" He raised a warning palm. "I'm not proposing a divided leadership. You're the company head, but I'm going to be the big boss in the field.

"Production versus distribution. I'll get the fruit out, you sell it. But let me run things this side of the wharf in my own way—the new wharf we're going to build." Steve grinned at his listener. "As for this little trick I paid on Tiblier, he had it coming and if it teaches him to be good, so much the better for both outfits.

"I'll stay clean as long as he does. If he cheats, I'll take his bridgework. That's our deal, Dan, I grow it, you sell it!"

Not until Montgomery arrived with the startling news of the returns which the cargo had brought did Steve reappear at the office. Then Marchand said:

"Well! I suppose you know what happened? Our bananas brought four fifty. And there's still a shortage."

"Does that relieve the banking strain?"

"Man alive! We're on easy street. I've got those fellows where I want 'em. I'm going North at once."

"Something tells me that your indignation at my business methods has lessened," Steve said drily. "Four fifty a bunch makes a difference, doesn't it?"

"I was never indignant. I was amazed, flabbergasted, shocked—but I'm beginning to realize that there's only one way to fight fire.

"Tiblier is behaving like a madman and I don't blame him. He's in worse trouble than I was. I'm beginning to believe he needed those cargoes as badly or perhaps more, than we needed ours."

"Hm-m!" For a moment Steve pondered. "Are you willing to go along on the lines I laid down the other day?"

"Why, of course! It's the only way we can go along."

"Very well. Now let me tell you what's wrong with our business and how to fix it. We've got too many eggs in one basket. Our lands are too centralized. We must spread our farms, go into Nicaragua, Costa Rica, Colombia."

"True enough but—"

"Tiblier planned better than you did in that respect. However, he's short of ships. We've got 'em. If he ever pulls out of this jam and acquires bottoms enough to move his stuff, he'll lick us. That's what he has sworn to do and—"

Disease Strikes

"After what has just happened? Impossible!"

"My mouth isn't big enough."

"Stretch it! Two weeks ago you were down: now you're on top. Don't let him up. I'm not very smart about finance but I never lost a rough and tumble.

"You're something of a genius with money; Tiblier stock is lower than it will ever be; his bankers are squeezing him; there is capital to be had somewhere. Go get it! Get him!"

Its ravages were controlled best by burning. Plants sickened, went stale and refused to bear fruit, whereupon the torch was put to entire plantations; whole farms were abandoned and new ground was broken.

This valley of the Ulua was perhaps the richest in the country; its potential possibilities were unlimited, nevertheless the scourge had struck it and Steve went to see what could be done.

He and Montgomery stood on an eminence overlooking the strip of cultivated farms which hugged the river and back of which extended enormous areas of flat, jungle land untouched as yet by ax or machete.

The rains were over, the Ulua flowed peacefully between its banks, nevertheless marks of its destructive rage were plainly visible. Here and there plantations had been eaten away in whole or in part; villages had been destroyed. Occasionally the stream had sought an entirely new course for itself, wandering several miles away from its former bed.

"What I mean is this: have you noticed that the clearings close to the river appear to be healthy? And that it's those two or three miles back which are sick?"

"It's always like that with this Panama disease. It never strikes close to the stream—at least not close to this particular stream. There's a branch of the Motagua where it's the same. That's where we raise the largest and the richest of our fruit. We've never had any sick trees there."

Do Our Best

"I suppose that means something. But what? . . . Ever been to the head of that tributary?"

Montgomery said he had.

"Looks as if you and I had a trip ahead of us," Steve declared. "A trip right up to the head waters of this stream. There's a reason why certain of these lands remain blight-free. It looks as if it was because of periodical flooding.

"If that's true, we've got to control those floods and turn them where they'll do us the most good."

"But, I say, that's a job for God," the Englishman asserted.

"Well, this is no business for midgets. Water control, no matter how expensive, would be cheaper in the long run than clearing new land every few seasons. We can't go on the way we have been going. I've a hunch this river can be harnessed."

Montgomery was doubtful whether the quality of the water had anything to do with the plague and he was not enough of an engineer to venture an opinion as to whether flood control was possible.

"Anything is possible," Steve told him. "Have you read what's happening down on the Isthmus? A man named Theodore Roosevelt is President back in the States. He intends to finish that job the French began.

"Roosevelt has raised seven kinds of Spiggoty hell, but he'll dig that ditch! He'll put us ahead a hundred years at one stride. Yes, and he'll put the Caribbean on the world's trade route.

"If he can do the job he has tackled, we can do this one, and by God I believe we're on the trail of that Panama disease! Anyhow, you and I are going to do our best to run it down and we begin tomorrow."

That was a trying journey for the two men. They covered hundreds of miles by canoe and on foot.

They hacked their way through undergrowth, waded swamps, forded streams, climbed hills and examined outcrops. Steve was tireless; he drove his companion to the point of exhaustion although to the latter it all seemed an extravagant waste of effort.

But eventually Montgomery had to admit that the discoveries he and Steve made appeared to be significant. Instead of returning to Cortes in two weeks they were gone more than a month.

When Steve finally reappeared at Capachino's he was lean and bearded, his body was festered with thorn scratches and insect bites, his garments hung in tatters upon his frame. Montgomery was a living skeleton and he groaned when he walked.

The trying journey that Steve made into the wilds. Will he be able to accomplish his plans to rid the river territory of the dread disease? Continue this story in Monday's American.

Radio Answers

Q—Who plays the part of "The Kingfish"? Is it "Amos" or "Andy" and your answer will settle a wager. We will abide by your answer.

J. C., of Cambridge.

A—It is played by "Amos" who is in reality Freeman F. Gosden.

Q—Why has Pee Wee Hunt been taken off of his singing spot with the "Casa Loma" orchestra? Is he sick, or what is wrong?

M. L., of Dorchester.

A—He is just holding off awhile, but still remains with the outfit and should be back soloing shortly.

Q—How do they make the sound of an automobile starting and stopping? It doesn't sound real.

Motorist, of Malden.

Q—Where is the singer Donald Novis now? Is he on the air?

X. Y. Z. of Chelsea.

A—Not at present. He is touring in person. Strange you should ask as he will be in Boston as a Metropolitan Theater headliner next week.

Q—Is it true that Burns and Allen furnish the material for the comics Block and Sully?

Alert, of Allston.

DOC ROCKWELL IN NEW RADIO SETTING

By N. F. T.

For a long, long while I have wondered why it is no sponsor has seen fit to rig up a place for "Doc" Rockwell, truly one of the funniest of professional funnymen in the theatrical fraternity.

"N. F. T."

Now he moves in and as a featured artist with the weekly Al Jolson "Chateau" half hour. He begins his new network duties (WEEI) at 9:30 tonight.

Some time back the rumor and comment went the rounds to the effect that radio rahjahs were wary of the material Rockwell would use. He was at one time reprimanded for certain stories and comedy he executed down Radio City way. However, it was the "Doc" himself who is said to have laid down the law concerning any interference with his methods and mannerisms. No matter, he is now seemingly all set and a lot of hearty laughs should be forthcoming for loudspeaker patrons.

WELCOME IS THE WORD

Just by the way and in passing, your typewriter tapping radio reporter here is slated to have some tongue wagging to do tomorrow night when that Amateur Nite hour (WNAC) moves out of the Boston Opera House and into summer quarters for 10 to 11 o'clock airing over at the Paramount Open Air Ball Room along Memorial Drive in Cambridge. Come on over, there is moral support and encouragement needed. Everybody welcome.

A program under auspices of the American Federation Actors will be broadcast from Station WMEX this evening at 7:30 to 8 p. m. Tom Senna will be in charge of the program which will include the popular Boston songsters: Dunn, Blue and Benny McLaughlin, Fitz and Murphy, Madeline Beatty and Jacqueline Stanley, and many other artists of note.

Two new songs, "Way Back Home" and "In the Middle of a Kiss," and two favorites of a few weeks ago which seem to be staging a revival, "Soon" and "Everything's Been Done Before," will be heard on "The Hit Parade" presentation (WEEI) tonight at 8:00

April PROFIT Shown

By Hugh E. Bradshaw

April, 1935, proved to be a profit month for the Boston & Maine railroad. An improvement in freight traffic and a reduction in operating expenses turned the tide. Net of $78,543 was shown.

The showing of the northern New England carrier headed by Edward S. French is cheering when it is remember that employe salary cuts were restored during the period. For the year to date, however, the result is not so good. A deficit of $456,120 is reported. While this is under that of the similar period a year ago there is a distinct need of a pick-up in revenues to eliminate entirely the red ink.

E. S. French

Whether it is a case of skillful political timing or not we cannot say, but it is a fact that the New England rail situation is being projected into the limelight at just the same time the reports of the carriers are made public. Today there is a possibility that governors of the New England States will go into the situation thoroughly at their conference to be held in Maine. Some pressure to have the roads operating out of Boston line up with a large eastern trunk line may be exerted.

• • •

State Street Jottings: One of the more important local traders is sticking rather close to New York . . . Where superstition has it he does his selling . . . Hide and leather circles report some slackening of demand . . . Hide sales have been restricted this week . . . Tanners are said to be holding to posted prices, however, and it looks as though the seller would outwait the buyer . . . Boston Elevated remains quiet in the face of state control rumors . . . And slides off on very little volume.

• • •

This section has always been more or less noted for its holdings of copper shares. With export copper prices traveling higher under the impetus of persistent buying it is hardly to be wondered that local boardrooms hum with talk on the shares of the red metal group. Chief beneficiary is Anaconda with its low cost producers outside the country. Kennecott, behind the protective tariff wall, is favored among the purely domestic properties.

• • •

Shorts: The last week produced little to hearten either bull or bear . . . If anything, the selling crowd have a slight edge in that the list did not lift through previous highs . . . Bulls combat this talk with the statement that after a long upswing the list was entitled to a rest, and it will shortly get going . . . Personally, we will stay right with out specialties, oils, aviations and dairys . . . These groups have held their own and look to be in good shape in the event of a dip . . . And could rally well in general strength.

FORBES SAYS JUNGLE LAW MUST GO

By B. C. FORBES

Several years ago I wrote: For aeons man knew only the law of the jungle—kill or be killed. Foes attacked on every side — crawling monsters, wild four-footed animals, savages more bloodthirsty than the Iroquois. Each and every human was shot through with the instinct of self-preservation . . . Gradually, this self-preservation urge taught them to cluster together in tribes. Stern necessity drove home to them that in unity lay strength.

Ages passed. We behold men drawn together into larger tribes, into separate racial groups, into loose-jointed nations . . . More centuries. Then came an event, then came a light. Then came the birth of a new era in man's struggle upwards.

Over nineteen hundred years ago man was given a higher goal, a supreme goal. The law of the jungle was outlawed. In place of enmity, hate, ruthlessness, revenge, destruction, murder, there was decreed: "Love thy neighbor as thyself."

Then the World War: The rule of the jungle suddenly was unleashed. Nation turned against nation. Kill or be killed!

The law of the jungle has become anachronistic, impossible of application. Kill or be killed is no longer tenable in the world of economics. A more basic law than any made by man decrees, "Live and let live"—or perish.

Self-preservation called into being the law of the jungle. Self-preservation now calls for the abrogation of that law if man is to rise to a high state of civilization and avoid reverting to suicidal savagery.

What do we witness in our own land and throughout the world today?

Almost every nation is erecting an economic Chinese wall around it to keep out the products of other peoples. International commerce, essential to mankind's highest well-being, is paralyzed.

MARQUETTE
Net Is Higher

BUSINESS STABLE DESPITE TROUBLES

New York, May 25—Opposition to pending legislation is making Washington a focal point for business leaders these days, Business Week states in its issue this week. Bankers are now speaking up against the banking bill.

Power producers and investors persist in their disapproval of the public utilities bill after its very slight revision. Senator Wagner's labor bill gets general condemnation from all leading industries. And the President himself leads the protest against a "printin' press" bonus.

On he business front there is a surprising stability despite unsettling effects of the NRA debate (complicated by the Schechter case), of the labor difficulties in West Coast lumber regions and East Coast shipyards, and of the familiar seasonal slackening of the second quarter.

The Business Week index has pointed upward for the past three weeks as steel activity and electric power have maintained a steadier pace than usual, construction has revived, and coal production expended under the threat of labor trouble.

If legislative uncertainties and strike threats are "clouds over the business sun," as the market reporters so frequently say they are, then the hand-to-mouth buying of recent years should figure as something close to a total eclipse.

That eclipse now shows some signs of passing. Rising commodity prices, inflation talk, and growing confidence in recovery are stimulating an unusual amount of forward buying.

Increasing production in the bituminous coal fields is normal for May and June; however, the sharp pickup of the first weeks of May is a response to fears that activity will be disrupted next month.

Negotiations for a renewal of the working agreement between the United Mine Workers and the soft coal operators fell through this week. Unless satisfactory arrangements are concluded before June 16, some 400,000 miners will stay away from their jobs the next day.

Some look to action on the Guffey bill supported by the union and some of the operators to avert the June crisis. Extension of the code, even for a two-year period, may not forestall a break, for the price structure which determines the coal operators' willingness and ability to discuss union terms has collapsed.

General Electric

General Electric Co. declared a dividend of 15 cents on the common, payable July 25 to stock of record June 28. Similar amounts were paid in five preceding quarters.

Irregular PRICE TRENDS Rule

New York, May 25—Irregular price trends entered the stock market today as the European gold standard nations appeared to be facing new monetary difficulties and the domestic picture was none too clear.

Another boost of its discount rate by the Bank of France in order to holt its ebbing gold bullion tended to dampen speculative enthusiasm for equities.

Other utility shares including United Gas Improvement and Columbia Gas moved in a narrow range.

Timely Items

Stock market observers found a restraining influence on sentiment in the shrinkage of bankers' acceptances in April. The drop of $37,898,730 in this item was ascribed to continued liquidation of acceptances based on goods stored in domestic warehouses.

Contraction of the entire total amounted to $52,487,245 and brought the volume outstanding as of April 30 to $413,372,771.

Further caution was generated by the weekly review of Standard Statistics Company, Inc., which said "recent business statistics have been uninspiring."

"Looking beyond midsummer, however, there is reason for optimism," the survey said.

Considerable attention was given the speech in St. Louis of George N. Peek, foreign trade adviser to President Roosevelt. Peek declared word currency stabilization at this time might lead to new complications.

He urged a policy of selective imports and exports as a means of aiding the solution of monetary trouble.

BOSTON STOCKS
Are Irregular

With interest during the closing session of the week at a low ebb there were few important price moves. Practically all of the favored utilities put in an appearance, with Eastern Gas & Fuel prior preferred off 3 at 62, contributing the major change.

Industrials did little, the trades taking place around previous closings, which in turn represent prices near the best levels for the year. Metal stocks were off the tape as were the rails.
